FROTHINGHAM NOMINATED

DRAPER NAMED FOR GOVERNOR

The Republican State ticket is Draper and Frothingham.

Lieutenant-Governor Eben S. Draper was nominated for Governor at the Republican State Cnvention in Symphony Hall this noon by acclamation, as was expected.

Louis A. Frothingham of Boston was nominated for Lieutenant-Governor by acclamation after his overwhelming strength on the first ballot made it clear to the Luce and Cole factions that any further conest was out of the question. Both Luce and Cole took the platform and advocated Frothingham's nomination by acclamation.

Frothingham acked only sixteen votes of nomination on the first ballot.

Voting by one ballot for the Lieutenant-Governor nomination began at 1:25 o'clock. The result of the first ballot was announced at 2:20 o'clock by Representative William F. Garcelon of Newton, chairman of the committee on balloting, as follows:

Total number of votes	1,538
Necessary for a choice	770
Louis A. Frothingham of Boston	754
John N. Cole of Andover	453
Robert Luce of Somerville	331

Lieutenant-Governor Eben S. Draper was placed in nomination by former Governor John L. Bates. No seconding nomination being necessary, the question was put and Draper was nominated by acclamation, and was then escorted to the platform to accept.

Hardly had he finished his nine-minute speech of acceptance when the row over the Lieutenant-Governor nomination—the real issue of the assembly—started in with a rush.

Argument began over how to ballot, even before they were ready to ballot at all.

A cheerful feature of this preliminary wrangle was the spectacle of Congressman Augustus P. Gardner, the permanent chairman, making a ruling against an argument put forth against the Australian ballot by the chairman's own father-in-law, United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge.

Demands by some that Lodge mind his own affairs also enlivened the ballot argument.

Battle Over Balloting.

Lieutenant-Governor Draper was nominated by former Governor John L. Bates. There was no seconding nomination, as per agreement, and the convention broke into a wild yell of acclamation.

But the three-cornered fight for Lieutenant-Governor was too hot to be suppressed further.

Representative H. Heustis Newton of Everett made a motion that Australian balloting be used on the Lieutenant-Governor nomination.

Frank P. Bennett of Saugus opposed.

"We want an open ballot," shouted Bennett.

Senator Lodge showed that, even if the Australian ballot was adopted, any kind of a ballot cast would have to be counted. He asked where were the booths for the [illegible]. His speech was a knock at the secret ballot.

"[illegible] your hands off," shouted a delegate.

"Let's have a fair fight," yelled another delegate.

Chairman Gardner ruled against the contention of his father-in-law and declared that the Australian ballot should be adopted and only that ballot would be accepted.

Vote Doubted.

It took two voice votes before Chairman Gardner declared that the Australian ballot scheme was voted down. The decision was doubted, and it was voted to verify the vote.

Four counties were counted, and then the doubt was withdrawn. The counties counted were: Cape, Australian, 19, open, 20; Berkshire, Australian, 26, open, 33; Bristol, Australian, 29, open, 79; Essex, Australian, 57, open, 123—total Australian, 126, open, 255.

Then Representative Newton withdrew his motion for the Australian ballot.

The result was regarded as first blood for Frothingham. The Frothingham lieutenants acted as whips in support of the open ballot. The Cole and Luce men were for the Australian ballot.

When Representative Newton withdrew his motion the open ballot was then ordered by acclamation.

Luce Nominates Self.

At 1 o'clock Luce took the platform and read a letter from Rev. A. E. Winship of Somerville, who was to have nominated him. Luce said that after making a simple announcement he would throw himself on the mercy of the convention. "You all know me. Those here who are my friends will vote for the principals which I espoused. If I am defeated I will join in union with the victor for the party success in November." When Luce took his seat he was vigorously applauded.

Charles W. Bosworth of Springfield, then placed Speaker Cole in nomination.

COLUMBIA PARK, Philadelphia, Oct. 3.—The American League season closed in this city this afternoon with a double header between the Athletics and Bostons at Columbia Park. Besides being the wind-up of the season to-day's games were the more interesting by reason of their marking the closing of the grounds on which the American League started in this city. Next year the White Elephants will be in their new home at Twenty-first street and Lehigh avenue.

THE GAME.

FIRST INNING.

McConnell walked, and went to second on Kellogg's wild throw. Lord sacrificed, Kellogg to Davis. Speaker's sacrifice fly was caught by Seybold and McConnell came home on the return. Hoey got to first on a slow grounder. Cravath doubled to left, scoring Hoey. Murphy misjudged Wagner's fly, scoring Cravath. Wagner stole second. Stahl's fly was caught by Seybold. THREE RUNS.

Nicholls tripled to centre. Strunk fanned. Seybold flied to Hoey and Nicholls scored. Murphy out by the Wagner-Stahl route. ONE RUN.

SECOND INNING.

Flater went in to pitch for the Athletics. Donahue flied to Strunk. Stahl fanned. McConnell died, Barry to Davis. NO RUNS.

Davis walked. Oldring sacrificed, Lord to Stahl. Davis stole third. Barry flied to Cravath, Davis scoring. Powers struck out. ONE RUN.

THIRD INNING.

Lord doubled to right. Speaker singled, but was forced by Hoey, Barry, unassisted. Hoey stole second. Cravath sacrificed, Davis, unassisted, scoring Lord. Wagner walked. Powers made a bluff throw to Murphy. He dropped the ball and Hoey scored. Stahl went to second on a hit, scoring Wagner. Donahue out, Barry to Davis. THREE RUNS.

Flater out, Wagner to Stahl. Nicholls struck out. Stahl's error gave Strunk his base. Seybold forced Strunk, Wagner to McConnell. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.

Steele flied to Strunk. McConnell out, Murphy to Davis. Lord walked. Speaker flied to Nicholls. NO RUNS.

Murphy singled to centre and stole second. Davis doubled to the top of right field fence, scoring Murpay. Stahl caught Oldring's foul. Barry flied to Cravath. Powers fouled to Donahue. ONE RUN.

FIFTH INNING.

Hoey fanned. Cravath flied to Seybold. Davis dropped Barry's throw to first and gave Wagner a base. Wagner was out stealing, Powers to Murphy. NO RUNS.

Flater safe when Wagner threw wild to Stahl. Nicholls struck out. Strunk hit into right. Seybold hit into right field fence, scoring Flater and Strunk. Seybold then took second on the throw-in. Burchell then took Steele's place in the box. Murphy fanned. Davis made a triple into deep centre, scoring Seybold and tying the score. Oldring fouled to Donahue. THREE RUNS.

WASHINGTON PARK, Brooklyn, Oct. 3.—The Dodgers wound up their home season here this afternoon when they met the Boston Doves in the final game of the series. It was a great battle as both teams were anxious to break away from here with a victory. Manager Donovan was confident that his men would win and said that he would send his very strongest team out. Both aggregations warmed up in the preliminary practice like champions and the big crowd of fans were assured of a royal contest.

NATIONAL LEAGUE GROUNDS, Philadelphia, Oct. 3.—Limping around like a lot of old men, but fighting hard to keep their position in the pennant race, the Giants played their last game of the season with the Phillies. And right glad the New Yorkers were that it was the last game with the Quakers. Murray's men have proven hard nuts to crack, but at that any team is hard for the Giants in their crippled condition.

Manager McGraw, who is nearly hysterical over the worry of keeping his men at or near the top, was again forced to seriously consider the advisability of sending the great Mathewson to the box again. All the other New York pitchers seem easy for the Phillies. Matty was in particularly fine trim for the job in spite of the grueling work he has had for the past few weeks.

There was a large crowd present to see the wind-up of the series. On Monday the Giants meet the Boston Doves on the Polo grounds for the last games of the season. New York must win everything in sight to land the National League flag.

MOROS AMBUSH SCOUTS; REPORT DOZEN SLAIN

MANILA, Oct. 3.—In a battle between a band of scouts and outlaw Moros on the Island of Mindanao, fifteen casualties are reported. Despite the fact that the battle was said to have been fought several days ago, word of it just reached Manila today. Fifty Moros attaced the scouts on Keithley road by ambuscade. Twelve Moros were slain or seriously wounded.

DECOURCEY HEADS PROBATION BOARD

The new Probation Commission recently appointed by Chief Justice Aiken of the Superior Court met at the Court House today for the first time, and organized with the election of Judge Charles DeCourcey as chairman and Joseph Lee, secretary.

GARDNER'S SPEECH AS THE CHAIRMAN

Congressman Augustus P. Gardner, permanent chairman of the Republican convention, on taking the chair, attacked Bryan's inconsistency and his platform. He then paid his respects to Roosevelt, saying:

"I believe that the American people in 1908 wished to elect the same President that they elected in 1904. Contemptible persons, judging others by themselves, felt convinced that a shrewd plan was afoot by which our present chief magistrate was endeavoring to secure a renomination without apparently breaking his word not to run again. How they misjudged him time has shown. Never did office so eagerly seek the man. Never did man so persistently and sternly refuse the office. Arguments did not shake him, calumny did not frighten him. From first to last he steadily thrust aside the temptation. He had given his word and that was enough for Theodore Roosevelt.

"I like to think of future generations of school children when they read of the

"BOB" EVANS' SON CHARGED WITH DRUNKENNESS.

MANILA, Oct. 3.—Lieutenant Frank Evans, son of Former Admiral Robley D. Evans, whose court martial will be heard on Monday, will make a strong defence. Lieutenant Evans is here with the fleet and will be arraigned, charged with drunkenness. It is reported that Lieutenant Evans has sufficient evidence to exonerate himself.

C. A. WEARE BANKRUPT; LIABILITIES $1,000,000.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Charles A. Weare filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States Court to-day, giving his liabilities as more than $1,000,000, and assets of $500. Mr. Weare filed his petition individually and as a member of the firm of P. B. Weare & Co.

BOYS SENTENCED FOR DISTURBING A SHOW.

Charles Rutt was sentenced to the Lyman School, and four other boys, John Burns, William Kenney, John Connalty and Henry Mellen, were fined $5 each by Judge Almy in the Cambridge police court to-day for disturbing a moving picture show in North Cambridge.

RESULTS OF AQUEDUCT RACES. [illegible]

1 DYING, 4 INJURED IN WILD AUTO RACE

BRIGHTON BEACH TRACK, Oct. 3.—Speed Officer Thomas D. Fickett is dying in the hospital and four autoists have been badly injured by a crash between two cars traveling sixty miles an hour in the second accident of the grueling twenty-four-hour automobile race which started here last night.

Fickett was struck on the track by the Simplex car last night, hurled twenty feet and picked up mangled and senseless.

With 10,000 spectators, who had been present all night, watching the terrific race, car No. 7, a sixty-horsepower Acme, driven by Patchke and Rodgers, crashed through the fence while flying at express speed, following the bursting of a tire. The occupants were thrown many feet and taken to a hospital unconscious.

But Five Entrants Left.

At 10 o'clock only five machines of the twelve entered were started for the last twelve hours. The track had been put in perfect condition. The Garford machine, which had been put out of the race last night when the Lozier No. 1 ran into it, had made all necessary repairs, and prepared to make a record of 12 hours. Interest was centred on the big Renault entry, which was in the lead at the time of the recess, and the Simplex machine. Basle relieved Strang at the wheel of the Renault car, and Lescault sat at the wheel of the Simplex. Lescault started off to try and gain the lap on the leader, and the two machines went tearing around the track.

Barney Oldfield, it was announced, would take the wheel of the Stearns car, and it is expected that the daring driver will try to get within hailing distance of the leader.

At the Emergency Hospital it was said that the condition of Fickett was very serious, as he had taken a turn for the worse this morning.

Daredevil drivers are hanging up an astounding record. At the eleventh hour the simplex car had covered 559 miles, which is forty-four miles ahead of the record.

Closely following it was the Renault, which had covered 558 miles. Next came the Thomas, with 515 miles to its credit. Four cars are setting a grueling hot pace in the contest. These are the Simplex, Renault, Thomas and Lozier.

All Records Smashed.

The Stearns car became a factor in the race early to-day. Although more than 200 miles behind the leader, the machine went out with the Simplex and Renault and roused the spectators by passing them twice. The Stearns covered fifty-seven miles in that hour.

Intense enthusiasm was aroused a short time later when the Renault car tore off 600 miles at the end of 11 hours 45 minutes and 15 seconds. This is fifteen seconds better than the former world's record for a mile track. This put the Renault in the lead, with the Simplex second.

The score at the end of the fifteenth hour:

Simplex No. 6—761 miles.
No. 2—Renault, No. 5, 758 miles.
No. 3—Lozier, No. 3, 702 miles.
No. 4—Thomas (6), No. 8, 690 miles.
No. 5—Allen and Kingston, No. 11, 533 miles.
No. 6—Cleveland, No. 9, 347 miles.
No. 7—Stearns, No. 4, 269 miles.
No. 8—Zust, No. 10, 228 miles.
No. 9—Thomas (4), No. 12, 206 miles.
Previous record is 706 miles.

THE STADIUM, Soldiers Field, Oct. 3.—With a gridiron made hard and firm by the first frosts, a biting wind putting ginger into both elevens and a rousing attendance of rooters who made the Stadium ring with their cheers, Harvard and the University of Maine rushed into the arena to-day in keen anticipation of their annual battle.

The Maine boys came down from Orono with the scalp of the Classical Institute dangling from their belt, Maine having won its first game by a score of 37 to 0. They also brought along with them six of the men who played against Harvard last year when the Crimson won by a score of 30 to 0. Although the Crimson team expected to win, the reputation which the Maine eleven has for fighting hard and the appearance of six veterans in the line-up of the visitors did not lead them to suppose they would have any walkover, and the Crimson put Kennard, the fast full-back, into the opening line-up.

The changes made in the Harvard line-up from that which prevailed in the Bowdoin game were mostly to try out different men and did not show permanent replacements. A few, howerver, showed that a sub had proved himself better than the man who was on the varsity at the previous game. At right tackle Ver Wiebe seemed to have eliminated Dan Forscheimer, and the superior head work of Jack Cutler at quarterback gave him a place in the line-up instead of Gil Brown.

INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE IN STATE CONVENTION

Delegates of New Party Assemble in Faneuil Hall to Name State Ticket.

The State convention of the Independence League of Massachusetts opened in Faneuil Hall at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

After reading of the call Charles S. Kidder of Taunton was quickly chosen temporary chairman.

Though the majority of the Boston delegates seemed to be strongly in favor of the nomination of Michael C. O'Neill of Allston for Governor, it began to look after the meeting of the State Committee, at 11 o'clock in the Old South building, as if the Hon. William N. Osgood of Lowell would give Mr. O'Neill a hard fight.

Mr. Osgood was permanent chairman of last year's State convention. He is well known all over the State as a prominent Boston and Lowell attorney, and has led many fights in the interest of the people. His adherents declared that he would make a very popular and an exceedingly strong candidate for Chief Executive of the Commonwealth.

Delegates Enthusiastic.

The delegates were prompt in arriving and showed great enthusiasm. The opinion was voiced on every side that the new national party would poll a big vote this Fall, not only in this State but all over the nation, especially in view of the exposures by William Randolph Hearst of the trust affiliations of both the Republican and Democratic leaders.

Besides Messrs. O'Neill and Osgood, the Rev. Roland D. Sawyer of Haverhill and Dennis J. Ring of Lowell both had strong backing for first place on the ticket. Mr. Ring had declared, however, that his business interests would oblige him to decline a nomination if tendered, and he threw his strength among the delegates to Mr. Osgood, who was indorsed by the Independents of both his home city and North Attleboro.

At the meeting of the State Committee at 11 o'clock Messrs. Osgood, O'Neill and Sawyer all addressed those present and a report of the executive committee on preliminary organization was adopted.

The Boston delegates last night at a caucus in room No. 348, Old South building, the headquarters of the city committee of the Independence League, voted to present to the State convention to-day as their selection for Governor Michael C. O'Neil of Ward 25, this city.

The caucus was called to order shortly after 8 o'clock by John T. Dobbyn, chairman of the Independence League City Committee. He announced the call for the meeting and was then elected temporary chairman, and Thomas F. Phelan, Independence League candidate for the House of Representatives from Ward 17, was elected temporary secretary. Afterward on vote of the body the temporary organization was made permanent.

Kelleher for Chairman.

The delegates voted in favor of Jeremiah F. Kelleher of Ward 7 for permanent chairman of to-day's convention, and after speeches eulogizing Mr. O'Neil had been made the delegates voted to support him.

Following this motion, another order was passed calling for the appointment of a committee of five, consisting of Alexander Cohen of Ward 22, John M. Pease of Ward 21, Jeremiah F. Kelleher of Ward 7, James P. Hayes of Ward 3 and Charles O. Power of Ward 20, to confer with Mr. O'Neill and inform him of his selection by the Boston delegates and secure from him his views on the matter. This committee reports his answer at a meeting of the Boston delegation previous to the calling of the State convention to-day.

The following presidential electors were chosen as representing Boston to be presented to the convention to-day: James P. Hilton of the Ninth Congressional district, Charles O. Power of the Tenth district and John A. Coulthurst of the Eleventh district.

Delegate Thomas Hooper of Ward 25 announced the death of Amos H. Estabrook, a member of the Ward 25 Independence League committee. It was voted to send a copy of resolutions expressing the sympathy of the delegates to the wife and daughter of the deceased.

The delegates discussed the attitude of the manager of James H. Vahey, the candidate of the remnant of the Democratic party for Governor, who, in a speech to the delegates in attendance at the Democratic convention, alluded to the fact that the Democratic party was reunited and that they were preparing to fight the Republicans.

Democrats Have Hard Fight.

"They have got a great battle to engage in with the Independence League forces also," said one delegate. "They tell us of the crisis that is at hand," he continued, "but it is funny that Bryan, who has been running for office for the past twelve years, and Vahey, who has been in the Senate for the past two years, did not find it out until this year."

M. C. O'Neill of Boston and W. N. Osgood of Lowell Lead for First Place.

Edward R. Monk of East Boston, another delegate, alluded to the splendid leadership of Michael C. O'Neil, concluding his remarks by saying: "Out of the midst of the people shall come one who will lead them to victory, and he is the Moses who will carry the banner of the Independence League forces to victory."

The music for the convention was furnished by Benavente's band, already a warm Independence League convention favorite. An unusually interesting and attractive programme was prepared by Jacques Benavente, many of the selections being of peculiar interest to the leaguers, as some of the selections to be played as encores for the regular concert programme will be compositions written by Thomas L. Hisgen, the Independence party's candidate for President of the United States.

The first number on the programme was a march dedicated by Jacques Benavente to the Independence League party. Thoma, a member of the Benavente band, has dedicated a waltz to Thomas L. Hisgen. It is played as the third number on the programme.

The musical programme arranged by Leader Benavente is as follows:

March, "Independence League"..........Benavente
Overture, "Zampa"..........Herold
Waltz, "Thomas L. Hisgen"..........Thomas
Selection, "Merry Widow"..........Lehar
March, "Our Governor"..........Lampe
Trombone solo, "The Deep Cellar"..........Kluge
Mr. Carl Behr.

MOTHER SEEKS DEATH FOR SELF AND BABIES

PUTS CHILDREN IN BED, TURNS ON GAS, LIES DOWN TO DIE.

Mrs. Anna Hickey, aged thirty-one, wife of John J. Hickey of No. 12 Harvard avenue, West Medford, is in a critical condition, and her three children, Anna, aged five, Margaret, aged three, and John Leo, aged four months, are recovering from gas poisoning, the result of the mother's attempt yesterday to end her own life and the lives of her babies. Terrorized and grieved because her husband, who has not been working for three weeks, came home intoxicated and tried to force his way into the house, Mrs. Hickey took the children into her bedroom, placed them on the bed and then, after tightly closing all the doors and windows and placing a rubber tube connected with the gas cock in her mouth, lay down to die.

When discovered by neighbors, who noticed the odor of gas, the mother was lying in the middle of the bed. She was just breathing. Little John Leo lay with his head snuggled beneath his mother's arm. Anna was on her side and at first the rescuers thought her beyond aid. Covered in the bed clothing, little Margaret was found lying under the bed, where it is thought she crawled to save herself. At the mother's side lay the gas tube which she had connected with the chandelier. It had broken away from the chandelier. Gas was pouring from the open tubes and the room was almost filled.

A hurry call was sent for physicians as soon as the victims were found and for hours Dr. Bean worked to bring Anna back to life. She finally responded to his efforts, and to-day is said to be likely to recover.

Hickey, the husband and father, returned home while the doctors were working over Mrs. Hickey and the children. He was locked up at the police station for the night.

BIG PAPER MILL TO RESUME IN SPITE OF STRIKE

TURNERS FALLS, Oct. 3.—Superintendent Porter Farwell of the Montague mill of the International Paper Company will make another attempt to reopen the mill Monday morning, but this time it will be made an open shop. The strike, inaugurated August 1, seems as far from settlement as ever, as the delegates representing the various unions, after an all-night session at Albany this week, were unable to effect a compromise.

It is reported that there has been another cut in the dividend of the preferred stock of the International Paper Company on account of the strike of employes. In July the dividend was one per cent. and Wednesday the directors declared one-half of one per cent.

To-day a notice was posted at the local mill of the International Company that read as follows: "To whom it may concern: The demands made by the International Brotherhood of Papermakers, Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, at their meeting held Sept. 29, can not be considered for a moment, and are herewith declined, and, inasmuch as the agreement made by the president of the organization, dated September 24, has been repudiated, the company must decline to treat with it further. This corporation, however, proposes to resume manufacturing at its mills at once, and to this end we will give notice that the positions vacated by those leaving the company will be filled as soon as possible. In filling such positions the preference will be given to those formerly employed by this company.

"That the company's position may not be misquoted or misunderstood, it desires to state that it is not opposed to organized labor, but is prepared to recognize any organization which is properly constituted and can convince the company's officials that any contract or agreements entered into between the organization and the manufacturer will be lived up to and carried out in good faith." The notice is signed by the International Paper Company.

1 DEAD, 1 DYING TEN INJURED AS AUTOS CRASH

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—One person was dead to-day, another was dying and ten others were suffering from various severe injuries as the result of one night's automobile collisions and mishaps in Greater New York.

James Edward Ryan of No. 43 Second street, Brooklyn, was instantly killed, and his companion, Miss Josephine Wagner, was fatally hurt when an auto occupied by four women and three men ran them down and dashed them against the wall of the Bijou Theatre on Livingston street, near Smith street, Brooklyn.

Eight people, including two women and the chauffeurs of two taxicabs, were seriously hurt as the two machines dashed into each other at right angles on Broadway at One Hundred and Fourth street.

Motor Cycle Policeman E. J. Patterson and G. H. Sheppard of Brooklyn were severely hurt on the Coney Island boulevard near One Hundred and Fifty-first street by an automobile containing three women and two men. They were chasing the auto, which was speeding sixty miles an hour. They caught up with it, but the chauffeur drove his car into them and escaped.

WIFE WINS AUTO RACE FOR CHILD

Hammond, Ind., Oct. 3.—A midnight auto race between husband and wife who had lived apart, each seeking to obtain possession of their three-year-old child, marked an alleged kidnapping here. The mother won and now has the custody of her child.

DRUGGISTS BANKRUPT.

Solomon A. Epstein and Joseph M. Colpack, under the firm name of S. A. Epstein & Co., druggists at No. 9 Boylston street, No. 1 Washington and No. 2218 Washington street, Roxbury, were petitioned into bankruptcy by creditors in the United States District Court to-day.

The following creditors were named in the petition: S. Robbins, R. J. Bowers and Jacob Rubenstein of Boston. Their claims amount to $700.

REPUBLICANS HOLD STATE CONVENTION

great administration which is drawing to its close. They will indeed be proud when they hear of the man who would not tolerate injustice. Their imaginations will be fired when they learn how the supremacy of the law was made a living fact instead of an empty formula.

"But more than all and above all, they will place at the top of the pedestal of true manhood the statesman who put aside the greatest sceptre on earth because he had given his word and would not recall it.

State Pride in Guild.

"My friends, there is a noticeable similarity to-day between the political situation in the United States as a whole and the political situation in Massachusetts. Here, too, at home a great chief magistrate is surrendering the sceptre to a great successor.

"Whether fortunately or unfortunately, I do not pretend to say, this old Commonwealth never chooses the same Governor more than three years in succession. Since the Civil War many distinguished men have been our chief magistrates, but not once has the rule been broken. Were it not for that fact, he would be an ignorant man indeed who could doubt for a moment that the people of Massachusetts by a large majority would again summon to their head a man who stands out as a mighty man among mighty men, as a shining star in a brilliant constellation, the man whose firm grasp still holds the helm of our ship of State. Who is there among you who would not be proud to cast another vote for Curtis Guild?

Growth in Draper's Fame.

"But, for weal or for woe, the helm is passing into other hands. A man stands ready to receive it who has grown in the estimation of the people year by year as perhaps no other man has grown in my political memory. Man after man who voted against him three years ago has frankly acknowledged the error and has now become his warmest partisan. Never, so far as I can remember, has any man in public life in Massachusetts been the object of such persistent misrepresentation and vituperative attack as he whom we are about to nominate for our leader.

"His acts have cast the lie in the teeth of his traducers in a way that he who runs may read. The sense of fair play has been aroused among our people to such a degree that his popularity bids fair to bear a just relation to his worth as a man, his ability as an administrator and his humanity as an employer of labor.

"It is easy for the demagogues to mislead for a time those voters who only see a candidate in the distance; but, thank heaven, they cannot mislead the voters in his own small town, where his neighbors know him and his workmen reside. You and I, my friends, do not know what the labor conditions are in Hopedale, no more does the yellow press nor the howler on the Democratic stump; but the whole State may learn the story and act accordingly by giving heed to the voices of the people of Hopedale, most of whom, directly or indirectly, draw their living from the great factory there.

Verdict of His Townsmen.

"Once a year those workmen and those neighbors there throng to the polling booths, each of them to express in secret on his ballot his opinion of the foremost citizen of his town. No chance there for the oppressive employer or the unneighborly magnate to shield himself from the just condemnation of his fellow-citizens.

"The day of reckoning came November 5 last year. The citizens of Hopedale solemnly and secretly registered their opinions, and when the day was done their verdict went out to the country by the overwhelming vote of 411 to 17 that the man they believed in and the man they trusted was Eben S. Draper."

REPUBLICAN STATE PLATFORM POINTS

Following are the main points of the platform adopted by the Republican State Convention to-day:

Policies—Is in "full accord with policies and principles announced at Republican National Convention."

Guild—Appreciates "excellent administration of Governor Guild."

Draper—Approves "business sagacity, absolute frankness and fearless zeal" of Lieutenant-Governor Draper."

Tariff—Reaffirms belief in high protective tariff.

Currency—"A more elastic currency is needed and will be provided, and we approve of the preliminary legislation of the last session of Congress providing for temporary relief and for the investigation of the whole subject by the present national commission."

Elections—Disapproves election of judges by popular vote.

Child labor—The Republicans "are content to stand on their record."

Navy—Indorses Hague tribunal, but believes "navy should be adequate."

Roosevelt—"We indorse the administration of Theodore Roosevelt."

National ticket—"We indorse the nomination of William Howard Taft and James S. Sherman. As standard bearers they are worthy of their predecessors, of their party, of their country."

LUCE READS HIS OWN NOMINATION

Dr. A. E. Winship of Somerville, who is confined to his home by illness, had prepared the following abstract of the remarks he intended to make in nominating Robert Luce for Lieutenant-Governor at the Republican convention. Because of Mr. Winship's inability to attend, Mr. Luce read this himself:

"Three men are presented to this convention as candidates for Lieutenant-Governor. Each has a large following within the party. The followers of each are here to nominate their candidate. Who wins a majority of the convention, wins every man in it. To me comes the honor of representing Somerville, the banner Republican city of New England, and of speaking for those who demand that Massachusetts shall lead in solving all civic and moral problems.

His Actual Vote.

"When the polls closed, the candidate of Somerville appeared to have about one quarter of the delegates, but this number did not accurately represent his actual vote, for in many places he ran against one or the other of his rivals, the vote was in many places close, and frequently the form of the ballot was such as to confuse the voters, resulting in the rejection of many hundreds of ballots meant for him, and the loss of numerous delegations. His friends are of the belief that he received at least a plurality and perhaps a majority of the popular vote. This had been accomplished without adequate funds for legitimate expenses, without the help of men experienced in political methods, without the active support of any great newspaper. His friends, zealous but untrained, faced two camps adequately provided in every respect for a powerful campaign.

"Never before in the history of Massachusetts has a third man in such an unequal race had any following when it came to voting. It is human nature to get into the fray with one or the other of the leading two candidates, but here, for the first time, from a third to half the party resisted all temptations.

His Record.

"This man has been a member of the Legislature for nine years. There his eloquence has championed every measure that has signified the human touch, 'warm, vital, close, life's symbols dear.' The Massachusetts Legislature is the best deliberative assembly in the world. In the history of nearly 300 years of Colony and Commonwealth it will not be easy to find one man who has begun so much legislation that is new and is vital to personal and political purity. Here is a man who has been absolutely up-to-date in every legislative ideal for a decade. Not a law at once progressive and aggressive in the best sense has gone on the statute books, attracting attention throughout the country, for which he is not in some measure responsible—not a law of the highest import in morals, civics, industry or commerce that he has failed to champion.

"Here is a remarkable combination of achievements. He has never advocated an advance movement that experience has demonstrated to be impracticable; he has not wasted his energy on unimportant reform; he has never hesitated to advocate any important measure because it was unpopular. He is the only prominent advocate of financial reforms, tax righteousness, franchise purity, justice to labor and capital alike, who is at the same time a leader in temperance and other moral legislation. He grapples with the evils of his own day and place, but always with a national outlook. He has opposed misappropriation of money and public influence, but has voted for every appropriation that was a good public investment. As chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means in his last year of service he showed that while being a progressive Republican, he was also a practical man of affairs, prudent, discreet, economical, a man of tact, foresight and sound common sense. His experience has made him more familiar with the business of the Commonwealth than almost any other man within its borders. His record proves the capacity to administer its affairs wisely and well.

A New Star of the East.

"All through this campaign not one word has been breathed against his honor and his integrity.

"No one west of the Alleghanies believes a progressive Republican of this type can be nominated in New England. It would be a sensation second only to the nomination of Charles E. Hughes if the West should wake up to-morrow morning and find that Massachusetts had selected for training for Governor the most complete reformer, the best balanced and most intense leader in human progress in this Commonwealth. It would hail a new star in the east, a new New England."

PRESIDENT'S SON TIRES IN WORK AT MILL

Theodore Ready for Half Holiday with His Shotgun in Woods.

THOMPSONVILLE, Ct., Oct. 3.—Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., is back on the job again to-day as an employe in the Hartford Carpet Corporation's plant here.

At 7 o'clock this morning, with a crowd of other workmen, the young man who, though a son of the President of the United States, has determined to work his way up in the carpet business from the bottom of the ladder, entered the factory, his back sore and his muscles aching from the work of the last two days.

The first thing "Bill" Hines, young Roosevelt's immediate superior, made the lad do was to sort wool. Roosevelt's back was bent over big boxes for hours and when he straightened up it was time to lunch. He immediately fraternized with the other workmen who had kept aloof until they got Teddy's measure socially. In ten minutes he had become the friend of all the other workmen in the room.

After luncheon the lad was put to work on the washing machine, and then he was given a chance to watch the operation of the spinning mechanism. Roosevelt is to be placed in the spinning room in a few weeks.

To-day Teddy has to attend to a comber, which strings out the threads of material used for rug making in long, straight lines.

"There's no need of making a fuss over me," he said while washing up. "I'm just an ordinary employe of this company, just like any other employe. I am going to learn the business. I ask no favors from anyone and expect to be treated like anybody else."

"And he will be treated like that," said Hines with a grin.

Teddy had dinner with Alvin H. Higgins, vice-president and general manager of the firm.

He spent part of last night cleaning his gun, as he is going shooting when he knocks off work to-day. After the short gunning trip he may whisk over to Hartford and go to a theatre and after dining with friends returns here to prepare his schedule for an outing to-morrow.

Young Roosevelt is exhibiting a keen interest in the gunning game. He will have only Saturday afternoons and Sundays to indulge in this pastime, to which his father is so devoted, yet he has conned the game laws as if he would be required to know every jot and tittle of their contents every day in the week.

When he gets reconciled to life as a mill hand young Roosevelt will move to a Thompsonville boarding house and pay his regular board the same as the rest of his co-workers.

Teddy, Jr., will not have to become a union man for there are no unions at the mill. The company has been eminently fair with its employes and the necessity for the formation of unions has never been considered necessary.

As Teddy will move about from one department to another, it will be a saving to him not to be compelled to become a union man and carry his card.

WANTS PAPKE TO MEET LANGFORD

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Willus Britt, who managed the recent Gans-Nelson fights, arrived in this city and was accorded a hearty welcome by the Battler and a number of friends who met him at the depot. Britt tried to steal secretly into the city, but his coming was made known and he was royally received.

Britt did not come here on business. He says he merely came to Chicago to get away from the monotony of California. Britt may take a trip East and try and induce Sam Langford and Billy Papke to hook up. Britt is the man behind the big cigar and has changed very little since his last trip here. Willus intimates that Coffroth is planning a number of good fights for the Winter.

THRONG CHEERS NEW PARTY MEN AT N. Y. RALLY

Cooper Union Filled at Biggest Meeting of Campaign; State Candidate Speaks.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The biggest political gathering of the campaign filled the big hall of Cooper Union at the Independence party rally and cheered Hisgen and Graves, Clarence J. Shearn and the other candidates on the State ticket. They cheered at every mention of the name of William Randolph Hearst.

Judge Joseph A. Donegan presided over the meeting and in his address introducing the speakers aroused the greatest enthusiasm.

"This is not like the campaigns of former years," he said. "Those campaigns were run by politicians who were not for the people. This is run by the people—the laboring classes."

Then Judge Donegan said he would in the course of the evening introduce Clarence J. Shearn, who although short in stature is a giant in intellect, and who has fought the great trusts. There were long cheers at this. When he referred to William A. Deford, as "your next attorney general," there was more cheering. There were also loud cheers for Mr. Hearst.

Colonel John T. Martin was the first speaker.

"I was a Tammany Democrat, but I discovered that the leaders of that party were political crooks," he said. "I have received more education from the Journal and American than in all my college years. If you believe the old parties have given you a good government you have no right to vote against them. But if, after study, you find they have not given you a good government your conscience should dictate that you vote for the new party.

"When you give women the right to vote we will have no more corruption in government offices—no more wars. No mother will send her son out to be shot. That's what we learn from the Journal. Continue to read it and in five years we will have women's suffrage."

THREE CUBS THREATEN TO RETIRE

CINCINNATI, Oct. 3.—"Johnny Kling?" "Absent."

"Johnny Evers?" "Absent."

"Harry Steinfeldt?" "Absent."

That's the way reports dope out part of the roll call of the Chicago Cubs in the Spring. But will it be so? Well, hardly.

Kling's retirement from the game is said to be due to the fact that he will open a billiard hall and bowling resort somewhere or other sometime or other. And as Kling's name and presence will be a goodly portion of the stock in trade, Kling will keep his chief asset on exhibition most of the time.

The ambition of Evers to get out of the limelight of baseball publicity hinges upon a desire to allow his worked-out frame to regain its natural rotundity, a condition impossible under the strenuous work to which he has been subjected for some years. Then, too, there is a human hoof beautifying emporium in Troy, N. Y., in which Evers has invested many of his doubloons, that cries aloud for more attention every time Johnny steps off the New York Central at that bustling Empire State burg. And barking to the howl of the shoes, Evers will spend his next few years in their midst.

Steinfeldt's post-baseball career plan is based upon an opportunity to get into business with papa-in-law. It's a bet that Steiny thinks he shouldn't overlook. Hence his announcement of farewell appearances in Cincinnati this week.

But it's a pretty safe bet that when the roll of the Cubs is called in the Spring there will be a lusty yell of "present" after every name marked "absent" at the head of this information.

SPECIAL BOUT AT ARMORY A. A.

The star card at the amateur show of the Armory Club next Tuesday night will be a special bout between Henry Hall, the middleweight amateur champion, and Jeff Madden of South Boston, winner of the New England heavyweight championship last Fall.

The entry list for the open classes at 115, 125 and 135 pounds is filling rapidly. Application blanks can be secured at the Armory Club, No. 541 Tremont street. Entry list closes Monday.

G. O. P. LEADERS TELL WHY RYAN IS WITH BRYAN

Traction Trust Head Pledged to Make Large Contribution to Campaign Fund.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Great interest was manifested by Republican leaders at national headquarters yesterday in reports that Thomas F. Ryan, head of the traction and lighting trusts in New York city, was pledged to make a large contribution to W. J. Bryan's campaign fund about October 15.

These leaders, all of whom have means of ascertaining exactly what their opponents are doing in the way of raising campaign funds, are convinced that Ryan was to make a large contribution as soon as the date on which Mr. Bryan is to make public all contributions has expired was correct.

In discussing the question confidentially they pointed out that the desire of Mr. Ryan to aid the election of Mr. Bryan was even more interesting than the open attitude assumed by Mr. Bryan in favor of the Standard Oil Trust as soon as Governor Haskell of Oklahoma had been selected as the treasurer of Mr. Bryan's Campaign Committee and had turned over $300,000 for the use of the Democratic National Committee delivered to him by the big corporation.

A member of the Republican Advisory committee called attention to the fact that Ryan was associated closely with Standard Oil interests, as H. H. Rogers and William Rockefeller of the Oil Trust had come to the financial aid of Ryan in obtaining absolute control of the gas and electric lighting companies in New York and of the various surface car lines as well.

This alliance, he said, accounted entirely for the sudden change on the part of Charles F. Murphy, boss of Tammany Hall, and Mayor McClellan.

In this connection reference was made to the active efforts of Morgan J. O'Brien and Alton B. Parker, personal attorney for Ryan, last year to force a treaty of peace between Murphy and McClellan, and to the successful efforts of these two men last August to force peace between Murphy and McCarren, boss of Kings County.

COTTAGE BUILT ALL COMPLETE IN 12 HOURS

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Oct. 3.—The building of a five-room cottage with a basement, the dwelling painted, plastered and ready for occupancy in less than twelve hours, is the accomplishment of W. C. Carl, an East St. Louis contractor. Carl boasted it was an easy matter to build a modern cottage in one day and he finished thirty minutes ahead of his schedule.

By noon the roof was well under way, the framework for wall and ceilings completed and ready for lathers, plasterers, plumbers, gas fitters and electricians.

The cottage has in addition to its five rooms a modern bathroom. The house cost $2,000.

BOY RUN DOWN BY FIRE CHIEF

While responding to an alarm of fire from Box 31 to-day Chief Bunker of the Cambridge fire department, ran his wagon into and knocked down Starr Burrage, twelve years old of No. 141 Thorndike street.

The chief picked up the boy and carried him into a near-by drug store. After the fire the chief returned to the store and took the little fellow home. Except for a severe shaking up the boy was uninjured.

FALL WAS FATAL.

STRANGE MAN BROUGHT INTO RUSTIN CASE

Mrs. Rice Says He Visited Her While Slain Man Was Attending Her.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 3.—New features were injected into the Dr. Frederick Rustin murder mystery when Mrs. Rice appeared to answer questions propounded by the insurance companies in which Rustin held policies.

The most significant new feature was the fact that while Mrs. Rice was sick at a hospital and was being attended by Dr. Rustin, a strange man visited her a number of times and sent her flowers and candy. Mrs. Rice introduced this man as her uncle, but on the stand admitted that he was not related to her in any way.

Another important feature was a letter from Mrs. Rice to Dr. Rustin, found in Dr. Rustin's papers after his death. This letter was dated April 7, 1908, and after thanking Dr. Rustin for kindness while the writer was a patient, said:

"My baby is doing nicely and growing fast. My husband joins me in sending his best regards."

This is the first mention of a child born to Mrs. Rice, and is the first mention that Mr. Rice was in Omaha, although he was reported to have seen her a few days before the murder of Rustin.

"That letter to Dr. Rustin about the baby was all a joke," said Mrs. Abbie Rice in an interview this afternoon. "There never was a baby; it was all a joke between Dr. Rustin and myself. Neither did my husband ever send Dr. Rustin his regards. I have not seen my husband for more than a year. That sending of regards was all a joke, too. As to the man who sent me flowers and candy and came to see me at the hospital, I really don't know his last name. I always called him 'Jess.' Of course I would know him again, but I don't know where to find him."

FERMANAGH MEN TO ADOPT SEAL

At the last meeting of the Fermanagh men, in Needham Hall, Roxbury, after the initiation of five new members, action was taken on the adoption of an official seal, which will consist of the coat of arms of the Maguires of Fermanagh, Ireland. A committee was appointed to arrange for a grand ball in the early Winter. P. McManus gave an interesting talk on his recent trip to Ireland.

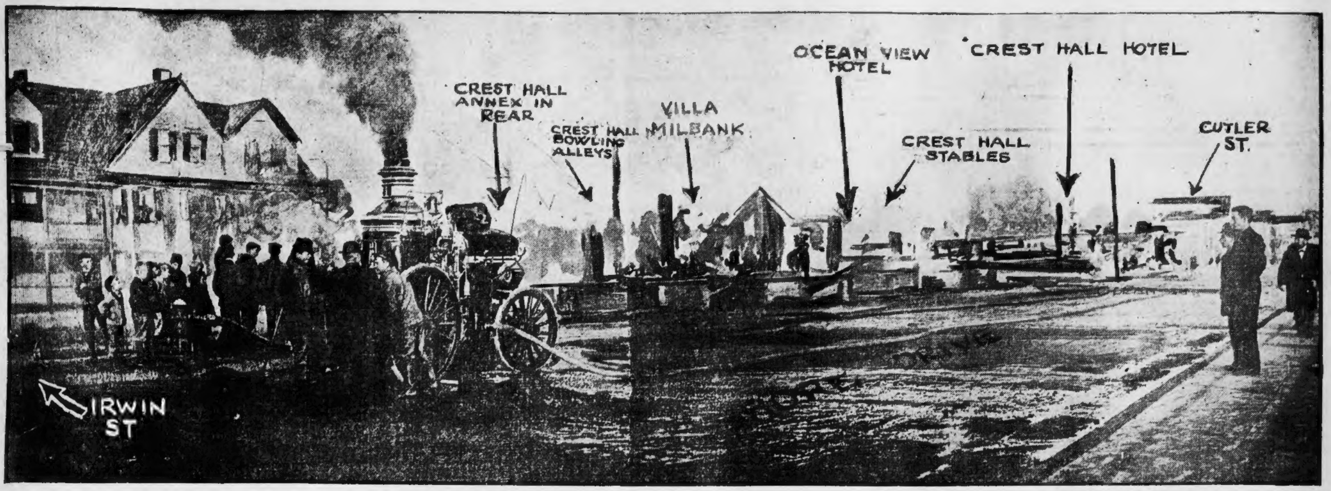
Fire Ruins, Where Search Is Being Made for Woman's Body

Photograph by Boston American staff photographer showing engine playing on ruins of fire at Winthrop Beach, where one life was lost and many persons injured. The property loss was $300,000.



One Dead, Five Injured in Midnight Fire That Razes Winthrop Hotels

MANY THRILLING RESCUES AS GUESTS ARE ROUSED BY FLAMES; LOSS $300,000.

Search is being made to-day in the ruins of a $300,000 fire at Winthrop Beach for the body of Mrs. Henry Dumont, a guest at Crest Hall, who fell back from a third-story window into a furnace of flames just as Firemen "Jack" McCarthy and William Taylor of Winthrop fire department were climbing to her aid on a ladder.

While firemen are going through the still smoking ruins for the body of Mrs. Dumont another search is being conducted by the police in the alleyway between the ruins of Crest Hall and the new annex for $1,200 worth of diamonds that were lost by Mrs. J. W. Ide, who jumped.

Mrs. Ide herself clambered about in the fire to-day, picking here and there among the ruins in a search for her lost jewels. She directed the police and firemen who aided her in the search, showing just where she struck the ground in her jump to safety. So far her search has been in vain.

Started in Boiler Room.

State Officer James J. Grady, who is investigating to-day the cause of the fire, says that it started in the boiler room of Crest Hall and that it may have been caused by hot coals or by a hot "slice-bar" being accidentally left where they could communicate to the woodwork. So far as the engineer at Crest Hall knows the boiler room and the fires were left in proper shape for the night.

Victims of the fire are:

DEAD.

Dumont, Mrs. Henry, forty years; guest at Crest Hall; perished in her third-floor apartment.

INJURED.

Foley, Miss Nellie, twenty years; domestic at Ocean View House; overcome by smoke in top-floor room and rescued by State Officer J. A. Philbrick.

Frasier, Hugh; Hose 3, Revere; face and hands cut; treated at Metcalf Hospital.

Ide, Mrs. J. W., of Boston; jumped from second floor of Crest Hall.

Poffin, ———, fireman of Winthrop; severe bruises.

Yeager, Walter G.; legs broken in fall while sliding down rope.

Starting in the boiler room of Crest Hall, on Winthrop boulevard, the fire swept through that structure. Then followed the destruction of the Ocean View House, Crest Hall Annex, the Millbank villa, a new cement building recently erected to take the place of the one destroyed by fire a year ago; the Crest Hall stables, the home of George Knowles at No. 33 Ocean avenue, Clara M. Hall's cottage at No. 37 Ocean avenue, Thomas J. Flynn's cottage at No. 38 Ocean avenue, Annette C. Wood's cottage at No. 34 Ocean avenue, Walter Haynes's cottage at No. 71 Shore drive, Harry Blanchard's cottage at No. 44 Irwin street. Damage was done also to Ellen B. Nelligan's cottage at No. 32 Irwin street, and to Mary E. Buckley's cottage at No. 92 Shore drive.

Mrs. Henry Dumont had occupied room 57, Crest Hall, with her husband, and when the cry of fire resounded through the hotel at 11:15 o'clock Mr. Dumont stepped into the hall, for others had seen him as they passed down the stairs, and called upon him to hasten, for the carpetings under their feet were beginning to smoke. He went back, but when he reached the door of the room his wife had disappeared from sight and, thinking that she had passed out by some other and more safe route, he lost no time in getting out himself.

What was his horror, after getting down to the boulevard, when he saw his wife standing at the window. The lower stories of the hotel were a mass of seething flames at that time. The husband tried to rush into the hotel, but men gathered about and held him back. "The firemen will save her," they cried.

Then the ladder went up against the blazing wall of the hostelry. McCarthy went up first. Behind him came the sturdy form of Taylor. Both paid no attention to the showers of sparks that swept down upon them and threatened to encompass them.

She saw them coming and leaned out over the sill as though she would reach down to the brave men. At one time those below thought that she was about to jump, and urged her with shouts of encouragement to refrain.

Up to the top of the ladder the brave fire fighters made their way. They had almost reached her. Then in an instant came the roar of an explosion. The ladder swayed, yet they did not mind.

The hot air blew out of the glass and the frame itself, and sheets of flame followed in their wake. No human form could withstand it. Those in the streets knew that death was at hand. The woman held up her hands and fell backward into the flames.

McCarthy and Taylor went up to the window, despite the flames that raged over their heads. Then they saw that it would be death to them to pass into that raging furnace.

When they got back to the ground another form plunged downward from a second story window. It was Mrs. J. W. Ide, who had jumped from the second story, and as those about picked her up she murmured faintly that her leg was broken.

Soldiers Called Out.

Three companies of regulars from Fort Banks were sent at midnight at the request of the Winthrop Selectmen to guard the property and household goods that had been carried into the streets from a score of cottages in the danger zone.

The fire was marked by numerous very narrow escapes and many heroic rescues. Many guests were asleep when the fire was discovered in Crest Hall, and were trapped by the smoke and unable to find their way from the building. Citizens, policemen, firemen and hotel employes rushed into the blazing structure and led women and children to places of safety.

Several of the inmates who were unable to make their way through the dense smoke which filled the corridors rushed to the verandas which surround the upper stories and stood panic-stricken, calling pitifully for help, until they were finally taken down ladders by firemen.

In Crest Hall there were twenty-five or thirty guests, and in the Ocean View forty. All of these escaped.

As soon as the Winthrop fire department arrived, calls for aid were sent to East Boston and Revere. Four Boston engines, an engine and hose company from Revere and an engine from Chelsea responded.

The first alarm was sounded at 11:12 o'clock, and when the Winthrop department arrived the structure was ablaze, and the guests were seen fleeing from the exits or grouped on the verandas of the upper stories begging for aid.

Scenes of wild confusion and panic followed the discovery of the fire in Crest Hall. The blaze gained headway with great swiftness, and the corridors soon became black with choking volumes of smoke. Guests, scantily clad, rushed from their rooms, not knowing, in their excitement, which way to turn. The hotel employes did excellent service, and one of them stationed himself at the head of the stairways of the third floor and held his post until he had guided many of the guests to the exits.

Eight or ten others who were trapped on the piazzas of the hotel were taken out by firemen, and Maurice F. O'Shea and Fred Cronin of East Boston succeeded in rescuing a woman and a girl from one of the upper stories.

Eugene Guilbeault, a special officer of Revere, who was present when the fire originated, led a number of children to the street.

The spread of the flames in the early stages of the fire was due, the firemen assert, to the fact that the water pressure was entirely inadequate during the first ten minutes. The Winthrop apparatus has no steamers, and depends entirely on hydrant streams.

At first, according to the firemen, the streams were so scanty that they did not attain a height of more than fifteen feet, and later the apparatus was greatly hampered by the fact that numerous residents turned on their garden hose to protect their houses from sparks, thus lowering the pressure.

A FewFacts About Hood's Milk

You can practice economy without sacrificing quality in providing for the table by reducing the amount of animal foods and substituting HOOD'S MILK, which furnishes all the nutrition necessary for health and strength at a far less cost.

You will save money by so doing, as

A PERFECT MILK is a PERFECT FOOD

HOOD'S MILK is tested for its palatability by an approved hygienic method. It is also tested daily for wholesomeness and richness in our Chemical and Bacteriological Laboratory.

Its handling is kept under constant surveillance by medical experts. Do not accept a substitute. Insist on getting what you ask for and be sure to ask for HOOD'S MILK. It is PURE, CLEAN and SAFE, and has stood the test of sixty-two years. Criticisms and suggestions will be gratefully received.

SHOWS COST OF THAW TRIALS OVER $80,000

Jerome, Asking Transfer of Sanity Hearing to New York, Gives Figures.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—District Attorney Jerome went to Newburg, N. Y., to-day and there asked Supreme Court Justice Mills for an order directing Sheriff Robert W. Chanler of Dutchess county to show cause why the trial without a jury of Harry K. Thaw to test his sanity should not be transferred on October 12 to New York county.

The District Attorney filed a lengthy brief in which for the first time the cost of the whole Thaw case to New York county was made known. The preparation of the cases against Thaw for his two trials cost New York county exactly $54,837.45. The expenses for expert alienists was $21,799.20, while the cost of stenographic reports of the two trials was $1,264.45.

It was pointed out by the District Attorney that if the test of Thaw's sanity were made outside of New York practically this whole expense would fall upon the county where the trial was held. If it were held in New York there would be practically no additional expense to that which the Thaw case has already cost.

The District Attorney also pointed out that the District Attorney of Westchester county would have to put in months of preparation for the test of Thaw's sanity, whereas the District Attorney's office of New York was already thoroughly familiar with every phase of the case.

Jerome added that he had been advised by Corporation Counsel Pendleton of New York that he could not participate in a trial outside New York county. In conclusion, the District Attorney said that Thaw was a dangerous paranoiac; that if his sanity were tested in some other county he would probably be set free and that he would become a menace to any community in which he should elect to live.

ANGERED WOMAN SHOOTS TORMENTOR

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 3.—Mrs. Lena Wethington shot down Edward Powers at Griswold and Michigan avenues at midnight. Powers, the woman asserts, has followed her a long time, annoying, threatening and at times actually abusing her.

LUCIEN SNOW DEAD.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 3.—Lucien Snow, one of the best known business men of Portland and member of the wholesale dry goods house of Bolster, Snow & Co., died suddenly yesterday of heart trouble. He was born in Boston fifty-four years ago, and leaves a widow and one son, Lucien.

"TRIED TO STARVE ME" —MRS. HOWARD GOULD

WIFE ACCUSES MILLIONAIRE HUSBAND OF HIRING MAN TO INSULT HER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—New and startling charges against Howard Gould are contained in an affidavit by Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould, filed in connection with her divorce suit.

In addition to the new accusations Mrs. Gould goes into detail concerning charges already made by her of ill treatment by her husband, which strikingly illustrate the troublous life of the millionaire and his wife.

Concerning her husband's cruel treatment and attempt to drive her from Castle Gould, their magnificent country home, Mrs. Gould tells of his employment of Maurice Molloy as superintendent with the above purpose in view. She says:

"Molloy began a constant attack upon me, designed to make it impossible for me to live on the place by his conduct and the conduct of the servants under him, known to and approved by the defendant.

Insulted by Her Servants.

"The servants refused to take any instructions from me.

"On one occasion Molloy came into the house, seated himself upon a sofa in my presence and lighted a cigarette. When I protested and ordered him out of the house he blew smoke in my face and told me he knew how I was to be treated, as he had a contract with Howard Gould and knew exactly what authority I had and how long I would last.

"When Molloy took possession during my absence in Europe he stated to the employes about the place, as I am informed and believe, substantially as follows:

"'I am boss now; what Mrs. Gould has to say does not go any longer. Mrs. Gould has no more authority than you have.'"

Tried to Starve Her Out.

According to Mrs. Gould, the $2,000,000 estate was not a house of plenty for her during Molloy's management, and she had to send away to buy supplies for her personal table. Her affidavit says:

"From that time Molloy's treatment of me grew worse. With the knowledge and authority of the defendant, Molloy refused to supply me with vegetables, butter and eggs from the place, and compelled me to send to the village and purchase such supplies as I needed, although there were great quantities upon the place, and the live stock and poultry had all been paid for by me out of my allowance.

"Not content with having by the aforesaid cruel and inhuman treatment driven me unjustifiably from our country home," continues Mrs. Gould, "the defendant followed his persecution of me by surrounding me wherever I went with a swarm of detectives and corrupted servants in the St. Regis Hotel to spy upon me and make reports upon all my movements. This was not confined to New York, but the defendant sent a number of detectives to Lynchburg, Va., where I was interested in establishing a farm for the instruction of poor boys in farming and forestry and agriculture."

False and Slanderous Reports.

Mrs. Gould alleges that these detectives circulated false and slanderous reports about her among the people with the intention of damaging her character and causing her pain. Concerning the employ-

Mrs. Gould strongly denies her husband's accusation of misconduct with Dustin Farnum, the actor, stating that she only met him on three or four occasions. She declares that after her husband had abandoned her she contemplated returning to the stage, and sent for Mr. Farnum to take lunch with her at the Hotel St. Regis, tha she might discuss her proposed return to the stage with him, and that they spent one hour and a half over luncheon in the dining room discussing the question of her return to the stage.

Mrs. Gould then tells of a flirtation carried on over the footlights with a dancer by her husband while they were in a box at the theatre together, and that when she protested, he declared it was the last time he would ever appear in public with her, because she didn't know how to behave.

"At this time the defendant began a systematic effort to make it appear that I was a drunkard and that this was the reason for our differences," says Mrs. Gould, referring to a trip to Cuba on the Niagara.

"When the waiter served wine at dinner and would start to serve me, the defendant would attract the attention of the waiter, shake his head and put his hand over his own glass, making a grimace, and cause me the humiliation of seeing the waiter, in the presence of guests, refrain from serving me on the open and insulting signals from the defendant."

Husband's Idea of a Joke.

Mrs. Gould tells of a cruel joke played on her on this trip when she visited the botanical gardens of Jamaica and took along luncheon in a basket put up for her by the steward, at the directions of her husband.

"When the luncheon basket was opened that day it was found to contain a bottle of whiskey, a bottle of brandy, a bottle of cocktails, a bottle of white wine, two bottles of beer and a bottle of champagne. There was nothing to eat but a little cold meat."

Mrs. Gould denies strongly her husband's allegations that she was addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors. She claims that she cannot live in the style to which she has been accustomed on less than $10,000 a month, and declares that her husband enjoys an income of more than $600,000 a year, and can well afford to pay her the alimony she asks for.

EVILS OF CHILD MARRIAGE.

How Much Does it Cost to Light a Match

ELECTRICITY is cheaper than matches for closets.

You generally want a light in a closet for a second or two.

1,000 matches cost five cents. A 4 candle power lamp costs for 1000 "lights" less than one-fifth of one cent, now that the electric prices have been cut.

You need not even stop to think of the danger from matches and the trouble in lighting them when costs are compared.

It has made a large difference all along the line—the reduction in electric prices. Everybody should—nearly everybody is—getting in Edison light these days. It would surprise you to see the figures on the number of new applications we received last month.

All these are needed to help out our reduced income due to the lower prices.

If you are already a customer you now have the advantage of our Department of Illuminating Engineering. Its purpose is to give you more useful light without increasing your consumption of Electricity or help you cut your bills without decreasing your present useful light.

Either way we are satisfied if you are pleased.

Here you are treated with the same courtesy whether you buy or not, as you would receive in the best retail stores.

CIGARETTES CAUSE OF BIG CHELSEA FIRE

Reckless cigarette smoking by men at work in the rag shop factory of Rubin brothers is found by Judge Cutler of the Chelsea Court to have caused the big conflagration of April 12, which cost eighteen lives and swept a large part of Chelsea out of existence.

In his report, filed to-day in the Superior Criminal Court, Judge Cutler declares Israel Smulsky, foreman of the Rubin Brothers' shop, "practically guilty of wanton and gross negligence and reckless disregard of obvious consequences."

He also goes on to indicate that Israel Smulsky and I. Rubin, one of the owners of the shop, are held to have violated the Sunday law.

The report of Judge Cutler is an exhaustive one, discussing at length the origin and effect of the big fire. He shows that Smulsky and four of his employes were at work in the shop on Sunday, April 12, picking rags, on a floor space on which much cotton waste had been allowed to gather, and gives it as his opinion that cigarette smoking under these conditions started the blaze.

In the report, Judge Cutler gives the first official list of those who lost their lives in the fire, as follows: Mary Field, Thomas Shea, James H. Cole, Ann Hake, Elizabeth E. Bonney, Minnie L. Fenwick, Edith Barnes, Elmira Boyer, Henry L. Lewis, Benjamin F. Knowles, William Morris, Ann Morris, William McNamara, Joseph Bennett, Elizabeth Short, Charles R. O. Short, Annie L. Smith and an unidentified man.

The Rubin Brothers' rag shop was near the corner of Second and Carter streets, where the big fire started.

FACTS ABOUT THE HAIR

Simple Method of Washing That Removes Dust and Disease Germs.

The air is full of floating dust, dirt and disease germs, which settle upon everything. There is a natural oil on your head that holds the dust fast, and in a short time you have dandruff and scalp troubles. The pores in your scalp are stopped up, the hair roots get no nourishment, and then your hair begins to fall out. It is all such a simple matter that a child can see that cleanliness is the one and the only thing needed. You don't need tonics, renewers, invigorators, or hair growers. You need Birt's Head Wash, which will put your hair and scalp in a healthy, natural condition, and you ought to use it at least once a week. It puts the scalp in such healthy shape that faded, lifeless hair resumes its natural color, and the hair of all who use it takes on a soft, silky gloss and sheen that every man and woman so much admires. There is no alcohol in Birt's Head Wash, as alcohol is said to make hair turn gray prematurely. Birt's Head Wash is made of Refined Soap, Cochin Cocoanut Oil, White of Eggs, Glycerin and Salicylic Acid. There are no things than these known for the hair and scalp, and any druggist will tell you so if him. If your druggist will not supply you, send 50c. in stamps or money order to Birt's Head Wash, 576 Fifth avenue, New York, and a package will be sent you by prepaid mail.

ARE WOMEN GOING BACKWARD?

No. 1.—Is the Girl of the Present Day Less Attractive Than the Maiden of the Past?

By DOROTHY DIX

ARE women retrograding?

Is the woman of to-day less sweet, and good, and womanly than the woman of yesterday?

Is the woman of to-day a less good wife and mother than her grandmother was?

Has the progress of the entire feminine sex been, as an Irishman might say, toward the rear?

The question seems absurd, yet last Sunday Father Vaughan, the famous English pulpit orator, preached a scathing sermon on the decadence of women, and almost every mail brings me a letter from some true son of Adam, who lays all of men's sins upon the shoulders of the modern Eve.

Men steal, according to these bilious pessimists, because of the women of to-day, having to have imported finery instead of spinning and weaving their own clothes, as their grandmothers did.

It's the Fashion to Decry Women

Men are driven to drink because the wives of to-day can't make pies like mother used to make. Men are even impolite and unchivalrous because women are no longer the clinging vines that their ancestors were.

"It was a pleasure and a privilege to a man to yield his seat to such women as my mother and grandmother were," writes one of these disgruntled gentlemen, "but I can't bring myself to be even civil to the aggressive, forward, arrogant woman of to-day."

Those who sigh for the women of the past are like those who sigh for the good old times. They would be the first to kick if they got them. No people are such enthusiastic advocates for going back to nature and the simple life as those who live in steam-heated, electric-lighted apartments, with individual bathrooms and elevator service day and night.

It is the fashion to decry the new woman, and Heaven knows, being intended as the companion and mate of man, she has faults and weaknesses in plenty, but the progress of the feminine sex has been upward and onward, and there has never been such a woman in the world before as there is to-day. She is better looking; she is healthier and stronger than any woman since the primal savage female; she is more intelligent, more honorable and more to be trusted, better fitted in every way to be man's helpmeet than woman has ever been before.

The truth is that the man who claims that women have retrograded, and weeps, because he can't marry his grandmother, doesn't know what he is talking about. He has gotten so used to a good thing that he doesn't know how it is; and if he should meet the paragon of perfection of which he dreams, in all of her original book muslin and innocuous vacuity, he would take to his heels.

None of that artless ignorance for him. None of that idiotic helplessness. None of that vapid talkee-talk. Never again! After all, you can't go back to bread and butter when you are used to eating plum cake and champagne.

Take, for example, the case of the young girl. The assertion is often made that the reason that men do not marry as early and often as their grandfathers did is because the modern girl is less attractive than her grandmother was.

Never was there greater nonsense. Men do not marry for a hundred reasons, economic and selfish, but one of them is not the lack of charm of the modern girl, or the fact that her grandmother possessed fascinations that she has lost by the way of evolution, as mankind lost its monkey tail.

Suppose, for instance, it was possible for the splendid, strong, broad-shouldered, well-read girl that swings so independently down the avenue to her work of a morning, or plays such cracking good golf, to be metamorphosed into the sort of a girl her grandmother was. Then consider seriously her chances of being admired by men and catching a good husband to-day.

She'd Be Frail, Sickly, Useless

In the first place she would be a frail, anaemic young person, with paper soled satin slippers on Winter and Summer, and a gown that was first aid to consumption that is afflicting her descendants to this day. She would think it vulgar to own to a healthy appetite, and no more than nibble on a chicken wing in public.

"Huh," the modern men would say, surveying this delicate being. "I pass her up, for I am not going to let myself in for the perpetual support to the medical fraternity if I know it. No semi-invalid for mine."

She would also be given to fainting. According to tradition and novels, our grandmammas swooned whenever they found a likely-looking man around handy to catch them. It was the most valued accomplishment in their repertoire.

But can you imagine the modern man going into the catching business for life? Not much. "Weak heart," he would say, "Nitski! Not here!"

She wouldn't be much of a comrade, either, would grandmamma. She would have fainted with exhaustion if she had been asked to walk a mile, for she was not used to taking any exercise. She couldn't have played golf to save her life. She would have died of fright in a motorboat, and would have perished of fatigue on an all-day auto trip.

So, in these strenuous times, when men expect women to hold up their end of the game and not be in the way, grandma, if she were in our midst, would be left sitting high and dry on the porch looking on, while Mr. Man trudged off with the new girl who can do things.

And as for conversation—well, grandma wouldn't know a blessed thing to talk about that a man would stand for for twenty minutes. She wouldn't know there was a Presidential race on, or, if she had heard about it, whether it was Kid McCoy or Dr. Parkhurst who was running; for it was considered unwomanly for grandmamma to take an interest in politics.

She wouldn't have to read the papers, or the last new novel, or anything human and intelligent. Besides which grandmamma was so easily shocked that one's conversation had to be censored and fumigated and expunged until there was mighty little left of it, anyway, and that kind of talk would not hold Mr. Man nowadays.

If trouble came to her family, grandmother could only sit down and weep. She is the boss weeper, which doesn't ever seem to do anything but make more damp, a damp bad situation. She couldn't roll up her sleeves and go to work as the modern girl does. No, indeed, she would just add another ton or two to the millstone already about some poor father's or brother's or male relative's neck.

Wouldn't Have Her if He Could

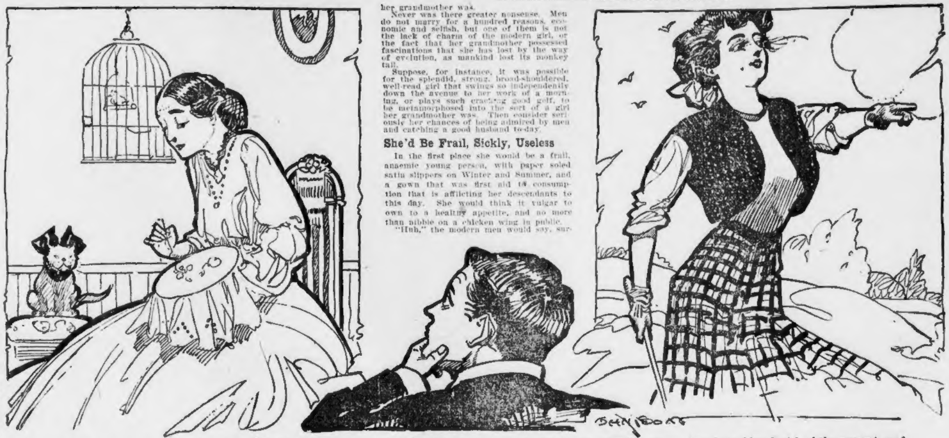
Would any man really admire to-day this feeble, ignorant, helpless creature, and desire to marry her? I trow not.

The trouble is that men demand so much more of women now than they used to, and because they don't get all they wish—because, after all, there are no feminine angels hanging around—they imagine that the woman they never knew is better than the one they do know.

Inasmuch, however, as women are the bearers of the race, and therefore responsible for it, the question of whether they are improving or retrograding is one of the most important in the world. It is a question that touches every human being, and so the BOSTON AMERICAN asks its readers to discuss this problem:

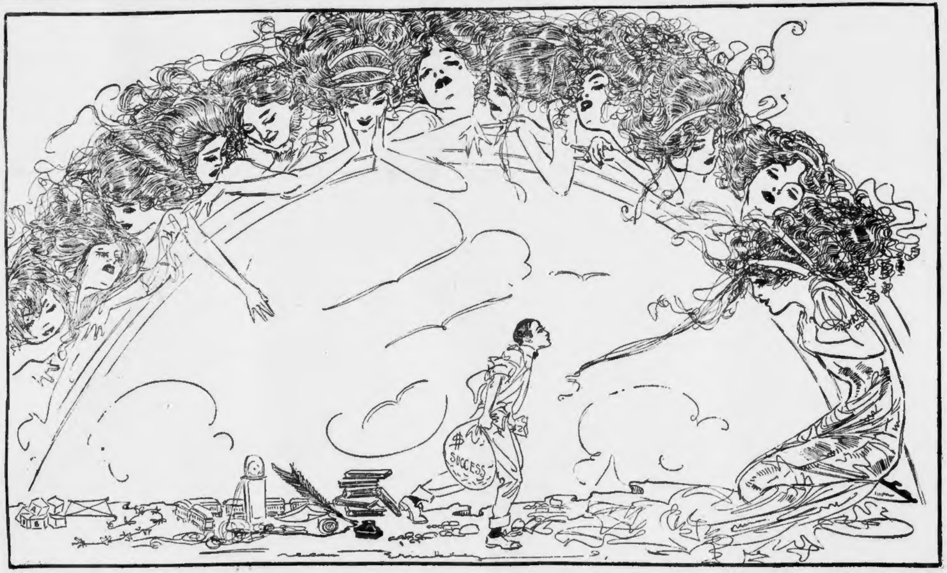
Are Women Going Backward? Is the woman of to-day an inferior creature, morally and physically, to her grandmother?

Address replies to "Editor Magazine Page, BOSTON AMERICAN, Boston, Mass."



Would any man to-day really admire this feeble, ignorant, helpless creature; or would he prefer the splendid, strong, broad-shouldered girl of the present era?

THE CHIEF BUSINESS OF MAN; WOMAN—By NELL BRINKLEY



The rainbow he tags along under is soft and shining with women's faces, and his pot of gold at the end is a woman, too. His track is strewn with booty for the heart of some woman.

WHEN heaps of the men folks of the world have come to the half-light—the twilight of their lives—where the shadow of death falls across their path, between them and the sunset, they begin to remember things. And the wise ones smile and know that most all the things—the things worth while, little and big ones—were done for a woman—for women, or one woman.

To carry to her in his hands and watch the smile in her eyes; to be big enough and fine enough for her; to make her lift her white chin for pride of him; to give her the things she likes the best in the world; stacks, oh, stacks of reasons—sometimes it's fame and high honor; sometimes it's round iron dollars—but it doesn't matter what it is; it's to make some Bettina love him and think he's the most wonderful man in the whole wide world.

His rainbow that he tugs along under all his life is soft and shining with women's faces. And his pot of gold at the end is a woman, too—from when he was little and his nose was just a little bit of dough.

The little Bettys, whose noses were dough, too, came first. And after that it was his mother he hunted down his trophy for. And then it was his wife, and after that his girl—his baby girl. And for these two last it was the biggest and most wonderful things he did—biggest of heart and in honor.

His back track is strewn with booty for the treasure house of the heart of some woman. From kites, through the writing of books and the fame that comes with it, and the building of railroads, and the quiet, patient grind of years of days, to maybe bags sagging with jingling gilt at the end. The wise ones know all this and smile and some make a sober face, and deny.

And some of those that deny are shiny-headed, nice old bachelors; and they bother themselves and worry themselves into a frazzle about Bettina and the things she wears, and what a little woolly sheep she is—and what she thinks of them and the things they do. Oh, la!

NELL BRINKLEY.

An Autumn Sermon for Busy Girls

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE Summer is at an end, and I wonder how many of my girls are going back to their work brown and healthy and happy.

Do you know that delicious sensation, as if all the energy in your body were concentrated in the tips of your toes—a sensation that makes you feel as though you could walk miles without fatigue?

If you want a great treat, try to get into the country some of these golden days. Go out into the country on Sunday afternoon, and fill your lungs and your eyes with the glory of Autumn.

Stand in the hazy October sunlight and sing aloud for very joy of living.

Not long ago, one day when I was feeling depressed, I said aloud, "How the day drags! I feel as though there were a thousand hours in it."

A dear little chap who was playing happily by my side said: "Yes; but, auntie, these hours won't come back, you know."

The blessed baby brought me to my senses very quickly with his quaint wisdom; for I do love life, and I don't want to shorten it by one minute.

I think even the grumblers and pessimists love life, in spite of all their dreary forebodings.

Health a Blessing

Of course, a great deal of happiness comes with health. If your body is sound and wholesome, and you feel full of energy, you cannot stay depressed very long; because in spite of the most adverse circumstances your heart will sing. "The world is beautiful and the sun shines and I am alive."

There is no blessing in the world to equal health.

You may be worth a million dollars, but if you have a weak heart, or indigestion, or a lame back, you cannot be perfectly happy.

But if you are all alive from head to toe with glorious health, you can soar to untold heights of bliss.

And all this preamble, my girls, leads to this advice: "Above all things, cultivate health."

If you have to choose between a dance in a close, overheated room and late hours, and a good walk in the brisk air and sensible hours, choose the latter, for the sake of your health and your complexion.

Don't think that I am urging you to give up all dances, as dancing in season is good, healthy exercise.

Destroys Health

But some of you go to three or four dances a week through the Winter season, and no working girl can do that and keep her health.

If you were only going to live through the dancing age, I might say "Go ahead! Dance every night; use all your vitality in that exercise."

But most of you, I hope, will live long lives of usefulness, and the best part of life comes after the dancing age—the time when you will be wives and mothers, helping to build the nation.

So, you see, dears, the most important thing for you to do is to keep yourselves healthy.

Get plenty of sleep. If you are obliged to rise early, make up by going to bed early. Nothing so quickly destroys health and good looks as lack of sleep.

Have fresh air in your sleeping rooms, and in the days of your youth avoid strong tea and coffee and, needless to say, spirituous liquors.

This sounds like a health sermon, doesn't it? But this is the time of year when little girls have to be told things to do that will keep them well and happy.

Helps for Busy Housewives

MUD spots on black clothes can be removed by rubbing with raw potato.

* * *

For five cents get two sheets of sandpaper and cut into twelve small oblong squares. Get a paper of brass-headed tacks and place one in each room under the match safe. It saves the wall paper and is a comfort.

* * *

Drive a large darning needle in the kitchen, quite high up on the wall, to hold wrapping paper and empty bags. Get a long piece of picture molding, or nine feet of pine strip. Drive in six or nine nails. Paint all with white enamel, nails and all. On ironing day hang upon this shirtwaists by the armholes; it is very useful.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

WRITE AND EXPLAIN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man of twenty-two years and have a young lady friend whom I love dearly. Recently I was invited to a party and there met a young friend, who introduced me to another lady friend of his. I escorted her home that evening and consequently my other friend became quite angry with me. Please advise me how I can win her back, as I am deeply concerned over the matter and know your advice to be very effective.

T. L. M.

WHY not write to her and explain the matter? Tell her that you saw the girl home merely as a matter of politeness and that you were not in the least degree interested in her. Tell your friend that she is the only girl you care for and that she must believe you. If you make your letter convincing she cannot help but believe you. If she loves you her love cannot be destroyed by such a trifle as your seeing another girl home from a dance.

BETTER LEAVE HIM ALONE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl seventeen years of age and have a great many friends of both sexes. About three months ago I met a young man a few years my senior, and we became very friendly. A week ago I attended an entertainment and met him there, but he avoided me and acted as though he did not wish to continue our friendship.

I know I am too young to receive serious attention from young men, but would like to continue to be friendly with this one. Can you tell me how to regain his friendship? Do you think it would be advisable to write and ask him the cause of his actions, as I see no reason for his being angry with me?

V. F.

NO, I would not write him if I were you.

If you have done nothing to offend there is no reason why you should write. Behave toward him just as you have always done, and your heart will be blameless in the matter. You are very young, dear, and will have countless other friends to take his place.

Expert Hints on Beauty

BY THE PROFESSOR

TO CURE WRINKLES

DEAR PROFESSOR:

I am troubled with wrinkles under my eyes. Will you kindly tell me how to get rid of them.

STEWART C.

MASSAGE with a good face cream, starting with the middle fingers at the nose and passing lightly under the eyes to the temples and on into the edge of the hair. Then return, passing along the upper eyelid back to the starting place. Use plenty of the cream, for it will build out the tissues and put the wrinkles out of commission.

ALMOND OIL FOR FACE

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will you please let me know if cocoa butter is good to use on the face to fill out hollow cheeks. Also please tell me how to use it.

C. M.

COCOA butter will fill out hollows, but skin foods made out of almond oil are better for the face, as they are more refining, cocoa butter being a coarser food. It is excellent for the neck hollows, but as the face is exposed to the weather all the time it should have nothing but the finest and softest of vegetable oils used upon it.

MOCK POUND CAKE

CREAM two ounces of butter with eight ounces of sugar; into this break one egg (not beaten) and stir until well blended, then another egg, and stir until no trace of egg can be seen. Now slowly pour on to this one-half cup of milk, stirring all the time. Sift together eight ounces of pastry flour, one level spoon of salt, same of baking powder and a pinch of mace. Stir into the other ingredients and when perfectly blended put into a small loaf tin and bake slowly forty-five minutes. Be sure the baking powder is level, for too much will make the cake coarse grained and not pound cake.

The Manicure Lady Tells How She Got Wise

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"I WAS reading in the paper this morning," said the Head Barber, "about a fellow from Bayonne who ate some toadstools, thinking they were mushrooms, and near died. He was a New Yorker, too. That's the part that surprised me."

"It didn't need to surprise you, George," said the Manicure Lady. "New Yorkers falls for lots more things than toadstools. If the New Yorker you just spoke about had found out that they were toadstools, that would have been a story worth printing."

"We're the wisest people what is," said the Head Barber.

"Oh, la, la!" exclaimed the Manicure Lady. "Shut the stable quick, before they steal the rest of the horses! And pickle the talk, George; pickle it!

"New Yorkers are wise enough when it comes to knowing what to wear, even though they can't afford it, but if you want to see real wisdom, go West, young man, go West. That's where I came from.

Maida's Going to Write a Novel

"Some day, George, when I have made enough money at this business to retire and write novels, I'm going to write a novel and I'll have a few things to say about New York men and New York women, and what they don't know.

"Oh, I could talk myself dumb telling about men that come in here to have their nails did because they don't know enough to do them themselves."

"You couldn't write a novel," declared the Head Barber. "I been listening to your talk for over a year, and I have come to the conclusion that you don't understand the English language good enough to write books."

"I'm going to write one, just the same," said the Manicure Lady. "I've got ever so much material. For instance, the other day a young club man comes in here. He calls himself a club man, anyhow, though he doesn't belong to no club except the Pen and Pencil Club.

"He was telling me about a wonderful poker game that they had up at the club. 'Oh, we played some cards that night, sister,' he says. 'There was as much as a thousand dollars on the table at once. I lost two hundred—all I had—but, you bet, nobody got away with any bluffs.'

"'There was one young fellow there from the West,' he says to me, 'and I could tell at a glance that he was one of them bluffing kind of players. As I said before, he didn't get away with any bluffs on me. I called everything.'

Where the Game Is Played Right

"Honest to goodness, George, I couldn't help thinking what would happen to that little lamb if he was to sit in and play a few hands with father's crowd of longhorns.

"Father is some poker player himself, but there is three or four men in his gang that can make a poker hand sing like a quintet, bless their dear old hearts. And every one of them is from beyond the Rockies, originally; and every one of them has made enough coin here in New York so they can go back and build villas in which to croak when the final summons is coming."

"There is lots of wise poker players among the New Yorkers," insisted the Head Barber.

"There sure is," said the Manicure Lady, "but they are only among the New Yorkers temporary, doing the best they can while the picking is good.

"And it ain't only gamblers that makes a good living in the big city. It's great for the dressmakers and milliners. I know a girl that was born in Council Bluffs and came East to study art. Her name is Sophie O'Connor, and when she found that art is long and prices short she began doing plain and fancy sewing, having learned to stitch out in her home town.

Sophie O'Connor Now "Honore"

"At first she did all kinds of seamstress work, such as making over frocks and putting long sleeves in the same, and carrying the work to the flat, and not getting the money till afterwards, but she got wise after a while. She found out that Sophie O'Connor was a bad name for dressmaking purposes, so she took down her sign that read 'Sophie O'Connor, Dressmaker,' and put up a new sign that read 'Honore, Modiste.'

"That's all it said, just 'Honore, Modiste.' There wasn't any front name at all. And say, George, you just ought to have seen the New York women flocking to her! She cleaned up ten thousand velvet the first season.

"And she's the dearest girl, too. Her success ain't changed her head a bit. The other day, when I called on her to borrow ten dollars, she was just as sweet as she could be, only she didn't happen to have the coin handy."

"Well, you don't know all the New Yorkers," said the Head Barber. "Most of us is jerry, all right. I certainly know where I stand, for one."

"Yes," said the Manicure Lady. "You know where you stand—on your feet, all day."

HARVARD MAN ELOPES WITH RICH HUB WIDOW

FIRST-YEAR LAW STUDENT WEDS WOMAN WHOSE FIRST HUSBAND KILLED HIMSELF.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 3.—Elie Charlier Edson, Harvard first-year law student and member of a wealthy New York family, is on his honeymoon with Mrs. Eleanor May Mann, widow of Arthur Mann of Boston and Windsor, Vt., who committed suicide at Nantasket last year, after financial reverses. They eloped, secured a marriage license here and to-day are believed to be in New York.

The friends of Mrs. Mann in Boston and her parents in Pawtucket, R. I., were unaware of the intended marriage, and the most intimate acquaintances of young Edson were surprised.

In securing the license Edson gave his age as twenty-six and his home as New York. Mrs. Mann said she was thirty and came from Boston.

The marriage of Mrs. Mann recalls the sensational suicide of her husband, Arthur Mann, at Anchor Cottage, Nantasket, in December last. For years Mr. Mann had been one of the foremost manufacturers of Vermont and had an office on Lincoln street, Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Mann and their one child lived in elaborate style on Commonwealth avenue.

On account of the panic in the money market Mr. Mann suffered severe business reverses, and shortly before he took his life his place was assigned. Up to three years ago he was reputed to be worth several millions, but it was found that the bulk of this had been lost in the stock market.

Mr. Edson is one of the most popular young men at Harvard. He is prominent socially, and in 1905 he was a foremost member in the Cercle Francais. He was born in Paris, and his early education was in the schools of that city. Later he attended school at Tunis. He has visited all parts of the world and returned only a week ago from France, where his father and mother are now.

Edson occupied sumptuous rooms at Holyoke House at Harvard, and yesterday he informed the janitor that he was going to Pride's Crossing to attend a shoot.

SAY WOMAN AIDED $50,000 GEM ROBBERY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—A young woman, it now develops, was concerned in the $50,000 diamond robbery, of which Oliver M. Farrand of No. 3 Maiden Lane, one of the wealthiest diamond importers in the city, was the victim. Mr. Farrand admitted this to-day, and said the theft was committed by his trusted clerk, Henry F. Marschner, who has disappeared.

"I cannot tell how much was stolen," Mr. Farrand said. "We have taken steps, however, to catch the thief, and I believe we will find him."

The young woman in the case was formerly employed by Mr. Farrand. It is intimated that it was through her that Marschner was enabled to get off with the diamonds.

NEW ORLEANS TO HAVE 90 DAYS' RACING

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 3.—Announcement that about ninety days of racing probably will be held at New Orleans this year was made by S. F. Heslip, president of the New Orleans Jockey Club, on his return from Louisville. Mr. Heslip says he plans for racing under some system of betting which will not violate the Locke law prohibiting race track gambling. This law permits individual betting.

CROSS BEATS FITZ.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—By a small margin Leach Cross, the pride of the East Side, earned a decision over Willie Fitzgerald in their six-round encounter at the Fairmont A. C.

GIANT LINER NAMED AFTER WASHINGTON

Special Cable to Hearst's News Service.

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—The largest German steamship ever built, which will typify the greatness and power of the German nation, is now being constructed, and when it is launched on October 31, it will be named George Washington in honor of the valorous American who was the first President of the United States.

Dr. David Jayne Hill, the new American Ambassador to Germany, has accepted the invitation of the North German Lloyd Company to name the new liner, and the affair will be conducted with great eclat in marine circles.

The dimensions of the George Washington are nothing short of marvelous. She will be 777 feet long, with a tonnage of 27,000. The launching will take place at Bremen.

WOULDN'T STAND FOR PUP IN THE FACE

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—"I stood for sleeping in a cellar, and when a flatiron came my way I merely ducked and held my peace. When she tossed kitchen implements and threw food, I fumed a little, I guess. But the climax was reached when she picked up a puppy and threw the little animal squarely in my face. Then I left home."

Such was the declaration made yesterday, by Samuel Yadkin, defendant in a divorce suit brought by Bessie Yadkin before Vice-Chancellor Emery in Newark.

ANTY DRUDGE
Fels-Naptha

Anty Drudge Tells How to Save a Day.

Mrs. Method—"Let's see when I can go shopping: Monday, washing; Tuesday ironing—"

Anty Drudge—"Right there's where you can save a day, Mrs. Method. Use Fels-Naptha in your washing and it'll only take a part of Monday forenoon, with no hard work and you can do your ironing the same day. Fels-Naptha's worth nearly a whole day in time alone every week besides the work, fuel and bother it saves."

Fels-Naptha is more than a soap—it's a helping hand on washday.

And a mighty big help, too.

If a neighbor came in and did three-fourths of your weekly washing, she would be doing as much as Fels-Naptha will do for you if you wish.

Fels-Naptha will dissolve and loosen the dirt in your clothes while they soak in cool or lukewarm water.

Then, with a light rub and thorough rinsing, they're ready for the line.

No boiling; no hard rubbing; in summer or winter.

And your clothes will be sweeter, cleaner and whiter than if you boiled them till Doomsday.

Take advantage of this helping hand next washday and the drudgery of washing clothes will be ended for you.

Follow directions printed on the back of the red and green wrapper.

THE WARRENS OF VIRGINIA

A Novel from the Romantic Belasco Production of the Play by William C. DeMille.

CHAPTER XI.—Continued

"YES, sah. I tell yo' de family is mighty poor now. Yo' come 'round here early in de mornin' and you see my pour old Marse John out dere in de field workin'; but Lawsy! he can't get it through his head how poor we all is."

"Sapho! Sapho!" came the call from the porch of the Warren home. "Bring a rail in off the back fence; we're short of firewood."

It was General Warren who spoke. Suddenly he came out to the end of the porch, shading his eyes.

"Well, great day! Jim Griffin!" he cried. "Howdy—howdy, Jim? Welcome!"

"How are you, Buck?" said the other man. Their handclasp was long and warm.

"Sit down," said General Warren, motioning to the rose-garden bench. "Sapho, call out the entire Warren family."

"Yes, sah," she answered, and went on her mission.

"Well, well! Jim, we have laid down the sword and taken up the plow. Here, shake hands again! Jim, you are welcome! The moment has come, Jim, when a Warren of Virginia has to work in his own fields."

"I'm sorry, Buck. I guess you can understand how very sorry."

Warren cleared his throat. The blow of defeat of five years had struck him hard. His hand was unsteady. His hair was very white. His eyes were habitually stricken with a vague expression. But he cleared his throat and said stoutly:

"Jim, you will see the birth of a new Southern chivalry. What you doin' down heah, Jim?"

"Travelling over the ground, getting more data for the government."

"Great changes, Jim—great changes. Some of my dearest friends and nearest neighbors were killed in the war or have died since.

True Hospitality

"Old Filo Simpson, my very nearest neighbor, is gone. Very lonesome without him, Jim. Great loss to our community. His judgment of a rooster was above reproach. But the Warren family, root and branch, is just the same. We are right glad to see you. Welcome to Virginia."

Agatha, Bob, Betty, Mrs. Warren and Miss Hatton came forward and welcomed Griffin. Sapho, on instructions from her master, brought a pitcher of spring water and glasses.

"We'll drink your health in this, Jim Griffin," said General Warren, and if the water had been sparkling wine of rarest vintage he could not have lifted his glass with greater elegance. And all the Warrens present drank with the Yankee soldier in courteous accord.

"Griffin, stay to dinner, suh," said Warren, cordially. The women exchanged startled glances.

"Thank you, I——"

Agatha pulled deftly at her father's coat tail.

"There's nothing to eat but fry, dad," she whispered, in dismay.

"I'm not alone, General," said Griffin.

"Bring all your friends," said the General, with a wave of his hand. "The mo' the merrier."

The perturbed Agatha whispered:

"Oh, dad, nothing but hoe cake and fry."

Old Warren ignored her.

"Mother," he said. "I'd like Griffin and his friends to see some real Virginia hospitality. It may be on a less elaborate scale," he continued, "than we have been accustomed to——"

Griffin waved a deprecating hand.

"But," continued the General airily, "my wife and daughter bid me say that while Virginia is Virginia, with fish in her streams and game in her woods and warm hearts in her homes, we shall be delighted to see you grace our bo'd."

"Thank you," said Griffin. "I'll come to dinner."

Agatha could only look for sympathy at Sapho, who said under her breath: "Oh Lawd! Oh Lawd!"

General Warren went softly to Agatha.

"Send Bob to catch a fish for dinner."

"But suppose he don't catch one?"

"Well, is isn't the dinner, dear. It's the idea of one," said her father.

Griffin broke in.

"I'll be frank with you, Buck. The young friend who is down here with me will be most anxious to accept your hospitality."

"Bring him along," said Warren.

"But you ordered him out of your house five years ago. I came as a sort of advance guard to—to——"

"Burton?" demanded Warren, and his old eyes shone with angry lights. Agatha heard and stepped toward her father.

"Sapho," said the General, curtly and sternly, "get me down the old shotgun."

"Yes, sah," said Sapho, and disappeared.

CHAPTER XXII.

"Come Some Mo'"

"GENERAL, can it be possible that all this time has not softened your opinion of——" began old Griffin.

"If that young man thinks he can play a trick like he did on me and my family, and just naturally crawl out of it, he puts the saddle on the wrong horse," said Warren, bristling. "Mother,——"

"I agree with you, dear. Fo' all of me, you can take down the shotgun," said the mistress of Warren house.

Griffin protested.

"Hold on, Buck," he said, "you can't really blame a young officer for obeying orders. And there's one thing you can't lose sight of. He stayed to take his medicine. If you didn't shoot him it was not his fault."

"Pass it, suh! Pass the wah question entirely," retorted Warren. "But the feelings of a lady of my family have been imposed upon. The mattah rests naturally between Burton and me. My shotgun tells the rest."

"That' sright dad," Arthur Warren had arrived just in time to hear his father's declaration. But the young man said, cordially: "Howdy, General Griffin."

Griffin acknowledged the greeting, but he had not given up Burton's cause entirely.

"Miss Agatha, what is your opinion regarding Captain Burton? I certainly, myself, never had a better officer."

"The gentlemen in my family have spoken," said the girl quietly. "The ladies of Virginia seldom make a decision for themselves."

"And what one Warren thinks all Warrens think," said General Warren. "That young man had better keep out of Virginia."

"Well, I think it's a pity; but I'll tell him, and then I'll come back to dinner."

"Good, Jim Griffin, good!"

There was an exchange of bows, and when Griffin had gone Mrs. Warren took her husband gently to task.

"John, how could you invite him to dinner when you know there's nothing?"

"I reckon," smiled Agatha, "we'll have to eat roses. There are a good many roses in the garden, anyway."

Old Warren ignored the protests. He crossed to the bench and sat under the trellis of roses. There he yawned, and save for Agatha, who sat beside him, they were alone.

"Well, well! I must get a little more ploughin' done," mused General Warren, but made no motion to rest. Half to himself he continued:

"Lawd! How Jim Griffin takes me back! Hunting wah data? Can it be possible it's all over: that we shall never see those days again, except in dreams?"

A banjo, tickled softly, was faintly heard.

"Time's passin': it'll soon be forgotten. Sometimes now I pinch myself to remember that I have heard the voice of the great Jackson; that I saw and knew Ashby on his milk white horse; that I have been with Lee at Chickahominy, Malvern Hill, Manassas, Chancellorsville; Ashby, the pearl of Southern chivalry, gone—Farley smiled, fought and died holding my hand, and——"

Agatha laid her hand tenderly on his.

"Yes, yes, times are changing, dear," she said.

"I suppose so," he agreed. "Longstreet the bold, Hampton the fearless, hearts of oak; all have given up the struggle, and Jim Griffin coming back!"

The Dream of a Veteran

His head fell back against the arch of the rose-laden trellis. And in the dream that came the spirit calls of the bugle were heard and phantom cannons boomed and roared, distant drums rolled as in a symphony of victory, and—Old Buck Warren woke with a start, his breath coming short and hard. He looked at Agatha.

"I was dreamin', daughter."

"Yes, dad."

He sank back again to rest.

Suddenly Agatha started from her seat beside him. She peered down the garden at the oncoming figure of—her heart told her swiftly who it was that came.

She waved her hand at him—a forbidding gesture. It warned him to go away. But Burton came on.

She ran to him, first casting a fearful glance at her father.

"It's no use, Ned," she said. "It's no use. I say just what I said in my letter to you—'Howdy and good-by!' Sh—don't wake him. Ned, he is bitter. He is unalterable."

"If he can't forgive me," whispered Burton, "you—can't you? Put your hand in mine, Agatha. Come with me, up North. We've forgotten the war up there. Things are forgotten sooner up there."

"No, no, Ned! I can't come with you. But Lawd! There isn't any forgiveness about it. I didn't love you because you ought to be loved, or because you oughtn't to be loved. I loved you because I couldn't help it. But my kin's here. I love my family, and—they don't like you. So I've got to stay, Ned. But—Oh, it's good to see you again!"

"But, Agatha, other girls have left home and——"

"Oh, yes, perhaps. But, you see, what was the use of dad's raisin' a family if they don't stay by him when he needs them? I couldn't go now. I got to help roun' in the kitchen, and sew, and sort of raise Bob and Betty, and care fo' Pa and Ma, and——Oh, Ned—Ned! Another five years and you'll have forgotten me."

"But I'll never forget you, Ned. I'll never be able to. I'll be like so many down here—a war widow. Oh, I've lost you—like so many girls on both sides have lost theirs."

Burton put out his arms.

"Agatha, dear girl, I want you," he said.

"There's no use saying any mo', I reckon," she said. "No, I can't go to your arms. I'll just put my hands behind me. I close my eyes. I do not see your arms."

She sobbed, and Burton threw his arms around her and caught her up to him.

"Agatha, Agatha, time will do very great things. You don't know what time will do."

"You Come Back Some Mo'"

"Oh, yes, I do," she smiled, disengaging herself from his embrace. "I'm going to be a sweet little wrinkled up old lady, like some I know; a—little war relic and—But I'll always be thinking of you, Ned; even then, Ned; even then."

"I can't go, dear. I want you."

"Go!" whispered the girl. "Go, now! Oh, Ned, don't make it harder. Please go. Don't make mo' trouble; foh deah old dad, he's older now—much older, my deah old dad."

"Not goodby," remonstrated Burton.

"Yes, honey—good-by. My sweetheart once—my sweetheart for all time. Good-by, honey; goodby."

She ran toward the house. As she stepped within she turned with a great surge of fear in her heart.

She heard her father's voice. He had been awakened. He was confronting Burton. She turned to look, with eyes big with apprehension.

And then she wondered at what she saw and heard. It was her father's voice, but it was low and very gentle.

The old Virginia gentleman was looking at Burton out of one eye. He had not been altogether asleep, then.

"Young man," General Warren was saying to Burton, "I don't like a hair in yo' head, you scoundrel, suh; but my daughter—my daughter, suh—well, look heah; you come back some mo'."

"Sir," exclaimed the astounded Burton.

"I said," repeated General Warren, "you come back some mo'."

In the great thrill of joy that swept over him Burton found himself strangely dumb. He could only say, as if this invitation were a mere formal thing:

"Thanks, I will."

But in the low, wide window of the Warren house he saw Agatha's face in the sunset light. And she heard. And he saw great tears of happiness in her eyes.

THE END.

600 TAXICAB DRIVERS STRIKE

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Six hundred chauffeurs employed by the New York Taxicab Company went on strike to-day, tying up every taxicab owned by the company.

The chief complaint of the men is that President A. H. Allen of the taxicab concern would not recognize their union, that he snubbed a committee sent to him from their organization, and that he refuses to give them living wages.

The strikers belong to Chauffeurs' Protective Union No. 267. They declare they will carry their fight to the bitter end.

HURT AT FIRE; SUES, $25,000

DOVER, N. H., Oct. 3.—At the opening of the Superior Court in this city to-day the suit of W. A. Turner vs. Cocheco Manufacturing Company, is brought up. Turner sues the company for $25,000 for personal injuries received at the burning of their No. 1 mill in the early part of February, 1907.

The burning of the mill was the most disastrous conflagration ever known in this section of the State, in which four operatives were burned to death. Turner leaped from the third story, and in doing so sustained several injuries, in which he broke a leg and dislocated his right hip.

CROWD ON PIER WAITS FOR BOSTON

The Dominion Atlantic line steamship Boston, due at Long wharf at 5:30 o'clock, had not arrived at noon to-day.

The fact that the ship had 250 passengers on board and that a slight gale was encountered a few hours after she left Boston brought hundreds of anxious friends down to the pier of the line, and the officials at the dock were besieged with questions as to the possible time of arrival of the ship.

The Boston is one of the staunchest of coast steamers, having weathered the terrific gale of November 27, 1898, which sunk the Portland and left the entire New England coast strewn with shipping. It is believed that some accident has happened to the steamer's machinery.

At 11 this morning the marine observer at Hull, with a vision of fifteen miles, had failed to sight the Boston.

WAR CLOUDS IN BALKAN REGION

SOFIA, Oct. 3.—It is semi-officially announced that Malinoff, the president of the Council of Ministers, has telegraphed in the name of the government to Prince Ferdinand, who is now in Vienna, to return to Sofia immediately.

The war material factories are working night and day, cavalry remounts are being purchased in Hungary and preparations for the mobilization of the army are being pressed forward openly.

Russian aggression is given as the reason for unrest.

The total mobilized strength of the Bulgarian army is said to be 210,000 officers and men, with 7,000 cavalry and 500 guns.

FAIRBANKS IN FEAR OF LOSING INDIANA STATE

PITTSBURG, Oct. 3.—Because he believes there is great danger of the State of Indiana lining up in the Democratic column, Vice-President Charles W. Fairbanks last evening refused to give a definite promise to the local Republican leaders to speak at any rallies in this county. Mr. Fairbanks said he would try to arrange his dates so that he could come here October 20 and 24, but would make no positive promise.

To Harry Diamond, secretary of the Republican committee on meetings and speakers, Mr. Fairbanks said:

"The situation in Indiana is so acute that I must hurry home and assist in the work of keeping the State in the Republican column. We have a desperate fight on hand, and I cannot remain away from the State very long."

DEER KILLINGS FEW IN MAINE

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 3.—Game receipts have been very scattering thus far. The first deer to pass through the city came down from Crystal and was owned by Charles Johnson of Brighton. The first licensed hunter with game to go west was C. S. Longley of Worcester, Mass., who came down from Grindstone with a big buck. This is the total of game reported here to date.

Conditions in the hunting regions have been much improved by a heavy rain of nearly ten hours duration with a strong wind and a drop in temperature which insures a heavy frost throughout northern Maine.

GRANITE STATE VOTERS TURN TO THE NEW PARTY

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 3.—"If bankers can give us a day's work in eight hours, why cannot our city laborers and the white slaves of our corporations?" asked George W. Rief, mayoralty candidate of the Independence party of Manchester, at the rally conducted under the auspices of the State Committee at the Elms Pavilion at Goff's Falls, the southerly mill settlement of this city, last evening. The rally was well attended and Mr. Rief's denunciation of mill conditions stirred the workers among his hearers to enthusiasm.

"I believe and shall use all my influence in procuring an eight-hour law in New Hampshire," said Mr. Rief.

Mr. Lewis said in part:

"There are three classes of voters, the hard headed old 'stand patter,' the thinking and the unthinking man. It is useless to bother with the 'stand patter,' but they are growing very scarce this year, which will account for the great landslide of the Independence party.

"The thinking man is already turning to and accepting the Independence party platform and the unthinking men are being enlightened and stirred up to think through speakers and campaign literature, so that they know how they are held down and oppressed and how the Independence party gives them relief, and they will vote that ticket.

"These thinking and unthinking voters outnumber the stand-patters in both parties so largely that an immense victory is looked for all over the country."

TAUNTON MAN DROPS DEAD IN THE STREET

TAUNTON, Oct. 3.—Ex-Alderman John J. Kavanaugh, one of the best known men in the city, dropped dead yesterday while talking to some friends in front of the Crocker building.

He had complained of not feeling well a short time before, but apparently attached little importance to it. He was a past exalted ruler of Taunton Lodge of Elks.

Never before was the entire country in such an uproar over baseball. The fans in every section of Uncle Sam's domain, as well as those who have only a casual interest in the game, are wildly excited because the two big leagues are in the throes of the greatest championship races ever heard of.

In the American League four clubs, Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and St. Louis, are fighting for the lead, with only a few points separating the first from the fourth.

But the real battle has simmered down to the first three and nobody can name the winner at the end of the campaign, which closes next week.

The National League race with New York, Chicago and Pittsburg in a terrific three-cornered clash has simply made the fans in those cities delirious and they are so closely bunched that it is possible that a tie might exist between them when the final games are played.

Now it is Pittsburg who leads that sizzling National League race to-day, because the Pirates won a double-header from the tail-end St. Louis team.

By so doing Pittsburg jumped above the Giants and the Cubs, who also won, and keep close up to the Pirates.

The Smoky City team may only have the honor of a day at the head of the procession, for there are only two points between them and Chicago in third place.

Detroit still hangs on to first place while Cleveland sticks persistently to her heels. The pair drew away from Chicago and St. Louis, the other contenders.

The two wins yesterday by the Tigers and Naps helped their cause materially, while the White Sox and the Browns were practically put out of the running.

It looks like a settlement between Detroit and Cleveland.

MANY STAR PITCHERS IN THE AMERICAN

Picking the star pitcher of the American League is at this time as puzzling a proposition as trying to figure out the probable pennant winner in the Johnson organization. In the early months of the campaign Addie Joss of the Naps and the two Bills—Dinneen and Donovan—got into the spotlight oftener than any other hurlers. Walter Manning was a sensation in May. The moment Walter Johnson came on the scene he made his presence felt in the pennant race and loomed up the equal of any man in the junior league. Then "Kickapoo" Summers of the Tigers was going, and by pitching and winning a double-header from the Athletics put the Tigers back in the race and boosted his stock.

"Rube" Waddell has been in the rays of the calcium by striking out sixteen and seventeen men in games and by doing much demon destruction to his old pals—the McGillicuddyites. Cy Young by his no-hit game against the Highlanders on a field that was as hard as a rock, showed he could not be put out of the running for the title of premier pitcher of the American League, and Ed Walsh is highly considered everywhere.

JEFF WRATHY AT PAPKE'S MANAGER

BY TAD.

Jim Jeffries declares that when he meets Tom Jones, manager of Billy Papke, he will tell him a few things that will make his ears burn for a week. The Los Angeles sports are still sore on Jones for running out after promising to fight Kelly there, and Jeff is the sorest man in town. The following is what Jeff has to say about Jones:

"I want you to say for me that Jones is an unfair man in his business dealings. I would like to use a stronger word, but I will wait until I see Jones personally, and then I'll tell him in a few plain words just what I think of a manager who will repudiate his word of honor given in the presence of witnesses. As long as I was in the ring I never broke my word even in the smallest detail. If I told Brady or Delaney anything they knew that I meant just what I said and they never worried about having me sign any papers."

The Los Angeles Examiner has the following to say about the thing:

"Los Angeles has long been noted for its hospitality to visiting pugilists, as Packy McFarland, Ketchel, Johnny Coulon and a score of other favorites can testify. With Papke and Jones the hospitality act was done to the limit. It is this fact that makes Jones's actions hurt all the more. It is like being betrayed by a best friend. Jones's exact words to Long were as follows: 'I intend to sign the articles before I leave town. I give you my word of honor; now isn't that enough?' On the strength of this statement Long went ahead with his arrangements, as did Hugo Kelly, who started training in Chicago.

"Investigation shows that the most surprised man in town when Papke whipped Ketchel was Tom Jones himself. Jones never expected anything beter than to run second best with his man. When the 3 to 1 money was pouring in from San Francisco, Long went to Jones and offered him a nice slice at these odds, but Jones wouldn't risk a red cent. Papke himself was confident and wanted to bet a thousand dollars that he would win, but Jones prevailed upon him to 'wait awhile.' The truth of the matter was Jones expected Billy to lose after a hard fight."

Cup Winners Announced To-morrow.

The result of the voting contest to determine the most popular player (amateur and professional) cannot be made known until to-morrow. A big patch of votes which had been mailed from distant points had to be counted, hence the delay in announcing the result.

The names of the winners of the two loving cups will be announced in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

PULLIAM SAYS PROTESTED GAME OF SEPT. 23 IS A TIE

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—After a week of deliberation, President Harry C. Pulliam of the National League has rendered a decision on the protested New York-Chicago game played on the Polo Grounds here, September 23. Pulliam rules that the game was a tie, and that the Chicago Club has no claim in equity for a forfeited game on September 24, when Chicago holds that the tie of the game previous should have been played off.

There has been no game in baseball history that has caused so much discussion as this famous contest which ended in a riot on the field. New York claimed the game in the ninth inning, when with Bridwell at bat, McCormick on third base and Merkle on first base, Bridwell made a hit which brought McCormick home. Merkle, the Chicago players claimed, did not touch second base and so was forced out by Bridwell, they said, thus nullifying the run scored by McCormick.

There was such a demonstration on the field at this stage that the police could not control the crowd.

The umpires decided the game a tie, and both Chicago and New York filed protests.

Pulliam takes up the New York protest against the decision of the umpires. He describes the play and says that to score the run Merkle should have touched second base. There was no evidence to show that he did do this, Pulliam sets forth, and on the contrary Umpire O'Day claims that Merkle did not touch second base, so was forced out.

The whole dispute comes down to a question of whether the umpires shall be upheld or not. In conclusion, Pulliam's statement says:

"This whole controversy hinges on a simple question: Was Merkle forced out at second base? Umpire-in-Chief O'Day says he was. O'Day is no novice, and there is no reason to doubt his accuracy in his decision. As an umpire he ranks second to none. He has been before the public for twenty years as player and official, and his integrity has never been questioned.

"I rule that this game ended in a tie score, and that for reasons stated above the Chicago Club has no claim in equity for a forfeited game.

"This ruling is subject to appeal to the Board of Directors, and in that event a meeting of the board will be called for Monday, October 5, the hour and place to be determined later."

DANNY MAHER HEADS JOCKEYS IN ENGLAND

Danny Maher, the American jockey, has taken the lead in the winning jockeys list on the English turf, and if he should travel in the same streak of luck for another month he may quit with the honors at the end of the season. In both percentage and the number of mounts won he is at the top, but in the latter department he is closely pressed by Walter Higgs.

The list includes the races from March 23 to September 19. One of Maher's latest successes was in the Egerton Handicap at Newmarket, when he got Burscough, the favorite, home by a short head from Abstainer, a horse in receipt of nineteen pounds from Maher's mount. At the same meeting he rode the winner of a two-year-old event, the Bury Selling Plate. Following is a list of eighteen of the principle jockeys and their winnings:

LIVE SKELTER BOXER.

"Jersey" Tommy Murphy writes to the BOSTON AMERICAN from Jersey City that he would like to box some boys in his class at any of the local clubs. He has boxed Willie Grupp, Dick Grant, Young Jeffries, Jerry Murphy, Joe Bedell and other well-known ring lads. He weighs 134 pounds and is located at No. 48 Yale avenue, Jersey City.

FRANK JONES ALES

AD JOSS IS KINGPIN IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Oct. 3.—The most popular man in Cleveland to-day is Ad Joss, the Naps' big twirler, who in the first game with the White Sox allowed his opponents no hits, and not a Chicago player reached first base.

Only three times has the performance of Joss been equalled in the major leagues, once by John M. Ward in 1880, pitching for Providence against Buffalo; once by Lee Richmond, pitching for Worcester against Cleveland, in 1880, and the third time by "Cy" Young, pitching for the Boston Americans against the Athletics, August 5, 1904.

Ed Walsh, Chicago's big twirler, shattered some pitching records of 1908, fanning fifteen men, the greatest number of strikeouts registered this year in any game other than an extra inning contest. Waddell fanned seventeen in a ten-inning affray. Walsh pitched only eight innings.

SYRIAN AFTER MAT BOUTS

George Nedef, the Syrian wrestler, is in the Hub looking for bouts in his class at 140 pounds catch-as-catch-can style. He offers to back himself for $500 against any man of his weight.

Besides being a wrestler Nedef does some wonderful stunts. He breaks chains on his chest through the agency of a nine-inch expansion and drives spikes into thick boards without any protection to his bare hands.

Any wrestler who thinks he would have a chance with the Syrian can get on a match by addressing him at No. 15 Hudson street.

FAVORS BOXING IN SMOKETOWN

PITTSBURG, Oct. 3.—District Attorney Harry Goehring has come out flat-footed in favor of prize fighting in the city. Recently the Fort Pitt Athletic Club was formed here, and one of their most important fights was held between Harry Lewis and Unk Russell. Several attempts were made to stop the fight, but the District Attorney refused to interfere.

BOXERS BUSY IN MILWAUKEE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 3.—Young Fitzgerald was to-day matched to meet Tommy Scully, formerly of Chicago, at Marinette October 23 in an eight-round bout.

Blink McCloskey of Boston, who is here, will probably be matched with Jack Redmond of Chicago, formerly of Milwaukee, for the semi-final to the Papke-Kelly bout here October 15.

Jimmy Clabby may also be matched at the same show, but it is hard to find a suitable opponent for him.

Freddie Andrews, the local bantamweight, who had his thumb broken playing ball three weeks ago, is all right again, and will go after the 115 pounders now.

BILLY HAMILTON SOLD TO LYNN

LYNN, Oct. 3.—A big baseball deal which will cause a stir all over the New England League circuit was closed to-day when the Lynn Club secured Billy Hamilton, the old Boston National League player and playing manager of Haverhill. He will hold the same position for Lynn next season.

Along with the getting of Hamilton there was an exchange of players, Lynn paying a money bonus. Haverhill is to get Pitcher Yerkes, Second Baseman Barton and Outfielder Clemens, while Lynn, in return, is to obtain Shortstop McInnis and Pitcher Mike O'Toole.

O'BRIEN WANTS TO BOX LANGFORD AT 158 LBS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Harry Pollok, who is managing the prize ring affairs of Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, is hot on the trail of Sam Langford, the Boston negro who considers himself good enough to fight for the heavyweight championship of the world. Before going after Tommy Burns or Jack Johnson for a battle, Pollok invites Langford to tackle O'Brien and maybe when he gets through with the latter the bumptious Bostonian will not have such a high opinion of his fighting qualities. Here is what Harry Pollok has to say on the subject in a letter to the press:

"Joe Woodman, Sam Langford's bodyguard, took a Daniel Webster dive into Gotham's daily news distributors yesterday with a ragtime collection of Bostonese oratory which, when unraveled, doped out that Messrs. Woodman and Langford think that Philadelphia Jack O'Brien is seeking to gain a certain measure of advertising at the expense of the aforementioned chunk of ebony. The proposition is so absolutely silly that I have but one reply to make, and that is to advise our excitable friend Woodman to never get below the Mason and Dixon line and spring that same remark. Stick a spike in that.

"Now I want to ask the fight fans a question: When Jack O'Brien made up his mind that he was going to fight, and came out into the open and asked the followers of the game to give him a chance and overlook the errors of his youth, and assured them that it was him for the straight and narrow, and that every fight he engages in is going to be a battle, did he, I want to know, start out and challenge all the 'lemon,' spavined, broken-down, second and third-raters in the business?

"What's the answer? Sam Langford—Langford, whose name is coupled in every fight bug's mouth with that of the world's heavyweight championship.

"If that looks like faking, then Mr. Woodman can have the floor.

"Woodman asks O'Brien to post $1,000 forfeit with a certain Mr. James H. Stack as a guarantee that he will box on the level. Why Mr. Stack I don't know. However, O'Brien has right along expressed a willingness to post $2,500 with any well-known sporting man, and leave it to the sporting writers of the New York papers to decide as to his honesty of purpose. That rings pretty true, eh?

"One word more. I matched O'Brien to box Langford at 165 pounds at 3 o'clock. I find that no club wants to take the risk of a squabble at such a late hour over the weight question. They all want 3 o'clock weight. Langford has been yelping at the heels of Papke with a 154-pound weight proposition. O'Brien is a legitimate middleweight. He will box Langford at that weight—158 pounds at 3 o'clock.

"Now, Mr. W., please let us have a little more action and less conversation.

Very truly, "HARRY POLLOK,
"Manager Jack O'Brien."

MOWATT IN FINE SHAPE FOR BOUT

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Tommy Mowatt, the stock yards boxer, returned to the city this morning from West Baden, Ind., where he has been preparing himself for his battle October 9 with Danny Goodman of the South Side. The contest is to be decided in private, with just a few friends on each side.

Mowatt certainly never looked better and feels that he will defeat the Hebrew boy with ease inside of the ten-round limit. So confident was he that he called up Doc Message, Goodman's manager, and spoke about a side bet of $200 and a proposition to make it a winner-all.

Message declined to make a side bet, but said he was agreeable to the winner taking all the coin in sight, and it is likely the articles of agreement will be so amended. Goodman is training nicely at O'Connell's gymnasium and never was in better shape. He thinks he is a sure winner over the stock yards man.

NEIL HAD TO WORK.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—Although outfought by Frankie Neil of Frisco, the former bantamweight champion, Frankie Moore of this city made a great showing in a six-round bout at the State A. C. Moore was the better boxer of the two, but Neil's vicious left told the tale.

MATCH FOR WALSH.

Arrangements have been completed for Jimmy Walsh and Young Britt to meet at Al Herford's club at Baltimore in a fifteen-round bout for the bantamweight title, October 9. The winner of this battle will in all probability be matched with Johnny Coulon.

DR. HALLOCK'S
Famous Remedies
CURE TO STAY CURED
All acute and chronic diseases and weaknesses from whatever cause arising. Nervous and physical debility, nervous exhaustion, exhausted vitality. A single treatment proves the invigorating qualities of our remedies; gives strength, courage and reserve nerve power; will accomplish what all weak men desire. Kidney weakness, bladder complaints, rupture, piles, fistula, gravel, scalding, painful inflammation cured permanently; blood and skin diseases in all forms, pimples and blotches on the face, pains in the back and legs, treated at home without detention from business.
"WHERE SHALL I GO TO GET CURED?" many a sufferer asks, not knowing whom to trust. Go where thousands of others have gone and been restored to perfect health, the comforts of home and the enjoyment of society, to OLD RELIABLE HALLOCK INSTITUTE, located over 60 years at the corner of Court and Stoddard Sts.
All lingering chronic diseases that have been neglected or have failed to yield to the treatment of less skilful hands soon get well under our superior treatment.
When suffering from diseases patients should seek advice from an expert whose experience and practice have taught him to apply promptly the proper remedy and quickly relieve the disease, thus avoiding the many months of treatment so common to the inexperienced and annoying and discouraging to the patient.
Everything confidential. Call to-day, consultation is free. A written guarantee given to cure all curable cases for a stipulated fee, payable as patient is able.
Our medical book on all diseases and weaknesses sent sealed free. Should be read by every man; send for it to-day, you will be a better man by reading it. Hours daily 9 to 9. Sunday, 10 to 1.

PIANOS AND ORGANS

PIANOS NOW COMING IN FROM SWELL SUMMER RESORTS

To Be Sold at Less Than Cost

WE HAVE almost 100 of the finest pianos in America on sale this week at sacrifice—About 75 of them are the Piano Trust's finest products—They were new June 1st, and have only been slightly used. We have put them in first-class condition and guarantee them to be as good as new, and being Piano Trust instruments, we take great pleasure in cutting and double cutting the price. When the representative of any piano house, especially a house in the Piano Trust, tells you not to come to us for a piano, he does so with the fear in his heart that you will see on our sacrifice floor, when you do come, the same make new piano that he has tried to sell you, marked with our sacrifice tag at a price from $100 to $150 less than he asked. See us on any make piano, new or second-hand, get our price, that's all we ask. We buy pianos for spot cash anywhere.

$5 Down—$1 a Week The gilded piano stores, with their costly appointments, their high-salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little, go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.
